Steel Strike Settlement Believed Reached

By PAT USSHER

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.—(CP)—The strike which has halted production in three Canadian steel centres for more than a week apparently was at an end today as the outcome of lengthy parleys between the government and union officials.

From their talks behind the closed doors of Labor Minister Mitchell's office came this official statement: "The way seems clear for resumption of steel production at once."

A total of 13,500 men in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sydney, N.S., and Trenton, N.S., have been idle because of the strike. There was no indication in the statement when production in the affected steel plants was likely to be resumed.

TERMS NOT MADE PUBLIC

Terms of the settlement reached in the talks which began last night and continued until early this morning were communicated to the union locals involved in the strike. The details were not immediately made public.

It was announced today that the terms will be made public by the Wartime Information Board at 11 p.m., C.D.T., Sunday night.

In a prepared statement issued this morning Elmer J. Maloy and John Doherty, international representative of Philip Murray, U.S.W.A. president, endorsed the settlement plan and said they were recommending the men should return to work.

The statement read:

"We the commission of the executive board of the United Steelworkers of America recom-

Blackout

Lloydminster Light, Power Service Fails

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

LLOYDMINSTER, Alta., Jan. 23.—Residents of this border town were undergoing all the discomforts of a blackout, with the mercury down to record low levels, as a result of a failure in the light and power service, due to causes as yet unascertained.

Business and regular activities in the town was at a complete standstill Saturlay morning, despite heroic efforts of Rafe Walker and Charles Mills, who worked all night through 45 below zero weather on power lines, in an effort to locate the source of the trouble.

USE NATURAL GAS

Lights have been kept going at the hospital by drawing on the reserve accumulator system. A few places have natural gas for lighting.

TRIPOLI'S FALL ONE OF GREATEST WAR VICTORIES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—State Secretary Cordell Hull said today the fall of Tripoli to the British 8th Army constituted one of the most overwhelming, outstanding and important victories of the war.

The government and the people of the United States rejoice in the achievements of the British 8th Army in capturing the North African city from the Axis forces, Hull said.

Arrives in U.S.

Last Train From Berlin

By Howard K. Smith

INSTALMENT XVIII
LAST TRAIN FROM BERLIN

ONE day, in the fall of 1941, one of the Propaganda Ministry censors, one Dr. Krauss, presented us with a handout penned by Dr. Schmidt, of the Foreign Office, attacking Roosevelt, and made known the Ministry's desire that we use the material. With Alex Dreier of NBC, I agreed not to use the material, since we had thus been served with a sort of order to make use of it. Dr. Krauss declared indignantly he would "report you gentlemen to Dr. Goebbels."

H. K. SMITH

A few days later, each of us received brief, two-line letters from the head of the German radio, Dr. Glasmeier, to the effect that the "Reich Radio rejects further cooperation with you."

We applied for exit permits to leave Germany, but the permits were not forthcoming.

I waited for an uncertain month in Berlin, able to do nothing but twiddle my thumbs and go walking. One evening, the same Wilhelmstrasse tipster who had once told Richard Hottelet—the U.P. correspondent imprisoned by the Nazis—that he was growing dangerously unpopular with the Gestapo, came to me and suggested, "My dear Smith, if I were you I would get out of Germany as fast as I could. If you do not leave soon, you will have reason to regret it." I assured him I agreed fully, but I could get no visa to leave. Next day, I visited the Foreign Office and learned that Columbia had agreed to send a substitute to Berlin, and I was granted an exit visa.

Word got around quickly that another deserter was deserting and a goodly clot of friends met us on the Bahnhof platform in the blackout. Besides a gang of agency reporters there were a few German friends there, bearing sandwiches and a bottle of home-bred Weizenbier. Pat Conger of U.P., told me he would see me in Switzerland in a couple of days. He had applied

Extreme Cold Retains Grip: 40 Below Here

The anxiously awaited break in the icy grip in which Edmonton has been held for nearly 10 days failed to materialize, and Saturday morning residents awoke to find the temperature 39 below, made worse by a blanket of fog which made visibility very low. A drop of one degree took place to make it 40 below at 11 a.m., but by press time this afternoon the mercury had risen to 36 below.

Although Saturday morning's temperature did not reach the low of Wednesday morning, 52 below, the heavy moisture in the air seemed to make the extreme cold more restricting and many residents walking quickly to work found breathing quite difficult.

High temperature on Friday was 20 below, 32 degrees higher than the lowest temperature of the week. It was accompanied, however by a fairly stiff breeze which quickly nipped noses and fingers.

With the continued cold spell which has held all of the three prairie provinces in its grip the coal situation became increasingly difficult.

To prevent hoarding the Wartime Prices and Trade Board instructed coal dealers not to deliver fuel to anyone who had 10 days supply on hand. It was hoped by this that the acute coal shortage might be partially relieved.

No reports have come into the

Edmonton Rink In 'Spiel Final

The Wolfe rink advanced to the finals late Friday evening by turning back A. Anderson of Alsask 10-9 in a 13-ender, winning with the last rock.

Wolfe dropped out of the Gas Company secondary in the afternoon round when he lost to L. F. Kirkham of Innisfail 14-13 in a semi-final match.

Wolfe and W. J. Edgar are playing the Birks' final at the Glencoe Club this forenoon.

8th Army Only 5 Hours Behind Schedule Set

CAIRO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—When the 8th Army launched its final offensive in Libya, Allied war correspondents were told that Tripoli would be in Allied hands on Jan. 22.

Alberta Hero Pleaded for Chance

Two Canadian Fighter Pilots Win New Glory for Homeland

By JACK DeLONG

Pilot Officer George Beurling, D.S.O., D.F.C., D.F.M. and Bar, of Verdun, Que., and Flight Lieutenant Dallas Schmidt, D.F.C. and Bar, of Millet, are two ace fighter pilots whose deeds of valor and magnificent dash in the smoke-filled skies above heroic, embattled Malta, have brought new glory to the arms of Canada's fighting forces.

And both PO. Beurling and Flt. Lt. Schmidt had to almost "fight" their way into the air force in the first place.

The heroic Beurling finally worked his way on a munitions ship to Britain and enlistment in the gallant R.A.F., after his sturdy young heart had been nearly broken through rejection from the R.C.A.F. because he lacked sufficient schooling.

Young Schmidt was enlisted in the R.C.A.F. only after "enlisting" the help of his dad and an old friend of the family, R. J. Wiggins, manager of the Edmonton office of the National Grain Co. The latter was able to arrange an interview with FO. W. Thompson, then commanding officer at No. 3 Rercruiting Centre, for the 18-year-old Schmidt.

PO. GEORGE BEURLING

FLT.-LT. DALLAS SCHMIDT

Of course what happened to both Beurling and Schmidt simply could not happen now. No youth is rejected in the air force at this time because he lacks sufficient schooling.

Red Guns Pound Big German Base

MOSCOW, Jan. 23.—Red army artillery opened a bombardment of Voroshilovgrad today while storm troops drove on that rich Donets basin war industry and mining city from lines only 10 miles away.

On the southern front, the Russians advanced on Timhorets, on the main Rostov-Caucasus railroad, after taking Salsk, junction point and greatest German air base in the entire region, 75 miles to the northeast.

In the Caucasus the Russians were within 70 miles of Maikop, oil field centre in the Black Sea area after capturing Mikoyan Shakhar, where the Germans had made their deepest penetration in the mountains, and freeing the towering peak of Mt. Elborous, 18,471 feet high, whose scaling the Germans had so proudly announced.

ENTER KURSK REGION

(The Moscow radio broadcast that advanced Russian troops had entered the region of Kursk, and a drive on the city continued with tanks crushing all opposition. The Kursk administrative area extends to a point about 66 miles east of Kursk city.")

The noon communique reported fresh gains on all major fronts.

With the capture of Voroshilovgrad, one of the great objectives of their winter offensive, in sight, the Russians reported that Meanest Gal!

TORONTO, Jan. 23—(CP)—In the midst of a fuel shortage and with dealers frantically trying to meet urgent requests, a woman pleaded with a coal dealer today for an immediate delivery, saying there was sickness in the house and she must have fuel.

The harassed dealer juggled his schedules and sent a truck around. The driver couldn't get near the house because there were already four other coal trucks there. On the verandah he found a small convention of angry truck drivers.

All five trucks were destined for the same address, and all five left without delivering any. The drivers discovered the woman still had two tons of coal in the basement.

U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Overdue

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The presumed loss of the United States coast guard cutter Natsek which has been overdue in the North Atlantic for several weeks with an estimated crew of 30 aboard was announced today by the navy.

The 225-ton Natsek, which went into service last June, was commanded by Lieut. Thomas Sargeant La Farge.

A grandson of the famous artist, John La Farge, Lieut. La Farge was described by the navy as well known for his murals, stained glass and mosiacs.

Canada Studying New Tax Scheme

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—(CP)—Some consideration has been given to the question of forgiving Canadians the income tax due for the eight months they are behind in payments, Hon. J. L. Ilsley, the Dominion's finance minister, said at a press conference here today.

"No decision has been made" on the question, Mr. Ilsley told reporters at a press conference at which he outlined the Canadian taxation system, told of Canada's financing of its war effort and declared the price-ceiling policy to be "highly successful."

Canadians, he said, now are paying 90 per cent of their income taxes on a pay-as-you-go system, although running eight months behind, so that 90 per cent of 1942 income taxes will be paid by Sept. 1, 1943, through the present deduction at source.

Allies Smash Last Resistance Of Jap Forces

By DON CASWELL

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Jan. 23—Australian and American troops after smashing the last organized Japanese resistance in Papua hunted down today the handful of tattered, hungry, fever-ridden fugitives who remained of an enemy army that, four months ago, 15,000 strong, was within 32 miles of Port Moresby.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced in a communique that the last three enemy pockets of resistance, two flanking Sananda point on the north coast of New Guinea, the third inland, had been broken and that 725 enemy dead had been counted. The day before 150 Japanese had been killed when the first of the enemy pockets was taken.

It was also announced that American Flying Fortresses and Liberators, in an amazing pre-dawn raid in which the great four-motored bombers swept down like fighter planes on Rabaul, the biggest Jananese base in the southwest Pacific, had destroyel four enemy ships totalling 24,000 tons.

One of the ships, a 4,000-ton cargo vessel, split and sank within four minutes. An 8,000-ton transport burst into flames and blew up. A 4,000-tonner sank in 12 minutes and a second 8,000-ton ship was left burning, disintegrating from a series of explosions.

Post-War Program

Social Security Measures On Lines of Beveridge Plan Likely at Ottawa Session

The following article is the first of a series of three in which the British United Press chief parliamentary correspondent forecasts the legislative program to which the federal legislators will address themselves during the coming session as a prelude to victory.—EDITOR.

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.—Once again the eve of another parliamentary session is raising high hopes in the capital here of legislative benefits of a major and fundamental nature.

Those benefits may be summed up generally under the widely inclusive and definitely crusading category of social security measures.

Against the background of the Atlantic Charter as the anchor of democratic hopes for a post-war world, and with millions in the old land looking towards the promise of a fuller economic life held out by the Beveridge plan, the Mackenzie King government is expected to propose legislation to stamp out the pattern of the brave new world which Canadians will face when victory over the Axis has restored peace once more.

ADAPTED TO CANADA

The mainspring of the program, usually-well-informed government sources hint, will be a Beveridge

Last of Mussolini's African Empire Now In Hands of British

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(CP)—British light naval units today bombarded Zuara in Tripolitania, 60 miles west of Tripoli, the Admiralty announced. Good results were said to have been achieved and large fires and explosions observed. The attacking warships suffered neither damage nor casualties, the Admiralty said.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The British Eighth Army marched into Tripoli and hoisted the Union Jack at 5 a.m. today and then sent striking forces racing west of Benito Mussolini's last African capital in an attempt to encircle and annihilate Axis forces straggling into Tunisia.

A lively battle was said to be developing between the advanced units of the Imperials and the Africa Corps, presumably west of Tripoli.

The German-controlled radio Paris admitted that the battle had started and that Axis forces had been encircled in the early stages but said that attempts of the Imperials to throw a firm ring around the Germans and Italians had been "frustrated."

Turns Tide of War For Allies

An Italian high command communique admitted the fall of Tripoli, but attempted to convey the impression that Axis forces had retired from the city voluntarily.

The smashing blow to Mussolini's dreams of African empire was hailed here by War Minister James Grigg as having been an action that firmly turned the tide of war for the British and Russian armies. He paid tribute to the remarkable offensive conducted by Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, Eighth Army commander, who in three months moved almost 1,400 miles across the desert, fighting most of the way.

The Axis offered a brief, sharp rearguard defence of Tripoli, but the Imperials pushed through to the city that has been under heavy Allied air attack for two weeks. They found that Italian and German civilian officials had fled from the city to the port of Zaura, 70 miles to the west and were attempting to escape in small boats. Allied planes attacked the boats and damaged some of them.

American troops, coming up to the aid of the hard-pressed French southwest of the Tunisian town of Pont du Fahs, checked the attempt of the Germans to open a wide corridor through which the Africa Corps could retreat to Tunis and Bizerte. French headquarters in North Africa announced that the Germans had been driven back several miles in the Wadi Kenir which runs through the mountains southwest of Pont du Fahs. The Americans were active against the northern column of the twin German offensive, and the Germans in that sector were thrown back four miles to a point six miles north of Robaa.

PLANES PLAY ROLE

Medium bombers and fighter bombers from the Allied Air Forces in Cairo played an important part in the capture of Tripoli and the subsequent drive on west. A communique said the Allied pilots op-

Canuck Troops Back in Canada From Overseas

OTTAWA, Jan. 23. — (CP) — Canadian veterans of the battle of Britain are now back in this Dominion, speeding towards homes many haven't seen since they sailed for overseas in the dying days of 1939.

Majority of the men returning were soldiers invalided from there front-line duty posts because of illness, although a few were suffering from injuries caused by accidents.

Chief among these were those hard-riding dispatch carriers who risk their necks daily as they hurtle over blacked-out English roads and lanes carrying official messages from point to point.

However, there were no battle casualties in the group.

Swelling the east-to-west movement were some 20 lieutenant-colonels, returning to their posts at army training camps in the Dominion after months spent gaining experience under actual battle conditions overseas.

A few R.C.A.F. fliers were in the movement, but they were vastly outnumbered by the hordes of English airmen coming to this country for training.

Other English included Royal Navy sailors and a large group of veteran merchant seamen, here to take over Victory ships as they slide from the ways of a hundred shipyards in Canada and the United States.

Social Security Plan Is Likely Ottawa Session

plan adapted to Canadian conditions and adjusted to the constitutional difficulties which any nation-wide plan for social security faces in this country.

No sooner was the Beveridge report published in the United Kingdom than it was known that the Canadian authorities were giving closest study to the document. It is only within the past few days, however, that the knowledge has spread that the government is attempting to frame legislation to put a similar plan into operation here without doing violence to the framework of the existing constitution.

The understanding is that the bill which the government is drawing — there is considerable expectation that it will be announced in the Speech from the Throne—will propose a system of grants-in-aid to the provinces for social security purposes. In this way the legislation would avoid the constitutional difficulty that most of the social security projects envisaged by the Beveridge Report would fall within provincial jurisdiction in Canada.

TO ALLEVIATE WANT

That the pending bill will be broad enough to serve as a fulfilment of the Atlantic Charter's dictum against fear of want being allowed to survive in a post-war world is generally expected. In addition to aiming at an adequate standard of living for every Canadian family, it is expected that it will incorporate advanced proposals for health insurance.

Some measure of the probable importance of post-war planning at the coming session is afforded by the reported intention of Prime Minister King to take charge personally of all policies of reconstruction and rehabilitation. Hitherto Pensions Minister Ian Mackenzie has been chairman of a committee charged with exploring this field, with Principal Cyril James of McGill University serving as chief economic advisor.

In recent weeks and months, however, post-war planning has assumed a new significance. Favorable developments for the Allied cause on the fighting fronts and the shifting of strategic initiative to the arms of the United Nations have brought the post-war world definitely closer on the horizon. The plans for it, consequently, no longer rank as secondary in their importance. Instead, they are looked upon as ranking in importance with the conduct of the war itself.

The indication, in brief, is that the government plans to make the coming session a tonic for the morale of the Canadian people in what is hoped to be the beginning of the end of the struggle. And the means to be used is the translation into concrete legislation of some of the post-war ideals of the Atlantic Charter.

Steel Strike Now Believed To Be Settled mend and expect our members in the steel plants involved to accept the settlement and to immediately return to the making of steel which is so necessary to our war effort.

"DECISIVE GAIN"

"After a week of careful review of the Canadian steel situation we believe the original demands of the workers to be entirely justified, but we think the present settlement is a decisive gain toward the objective of the steel workers and provides machinery for ultimately reaching their goal.

"One behalf of President Philip Murray and ourselves we wish to express our very deep appreciation for the kindness and courteous treatment we have received from Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Labor Minister Mitchell and other members of the cabinet who have all worked hard and diligently while resolving this very difficult situation."

The men, all but 1,000 of them members of the United Steel Workers of America, had sought a basic minimum wage rate of 55 cents an hour, with cost-of-living bonus additional, and proportionately higher rates for higher-paid workers.

SUGGESTIONS CONSIDERED

It was understood that one of the chief suggestions considered here during the last few days was that a basic minimum wage of 55 cents an hour be established, and that the National War Labor board be asked to rule on the question of cost-of-living bonus and retroactive pay.

One union demand was that any pay increases granted should be retroactive to last March when first application for wage revisions was made to regional war labor boards.

Workers at the Sault plant of the Algoma Steel Corporation now receive a minimum rate of 45½ cents an hour, plus bonus of five cents. Men at the Sydney plant of the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation receive a minimum rate of 43½ cents an hour, plus bonus of nine cents.

WOUD BE COMPROMISE

It was believed possible the settlement reached by the government and the U.S.W.A. might be along the lines of this proposal. It would represent a compromise between what the workers demanded and what the government offered in its seven-point plan which the union locals rejected earlier in the week.

The government in that plan offered to establish a minimum basic rate of 55 cents an hour, including cost-of-living bonus.

The official statement issued on behalf of Prime Minister Mackenzie King and U.S.W.A. officials said:

"A joint announcement is made by representatives of the men and on behalf of the prime minister that as a result of an exchange of letters and memoranda and discussions which took place today (Friday) between the government and officials of the United Steelworkers of America, the way seems clear for resumption of steel production at once.

"The details of the agreement of settlement will be communicated to the local unions by senior officials of the union, with a recommendation that work be resumed.

"The Prime Minister and minister of justice (Hon. Louis St. Laurent) and the minister of labor (Hon. Humphrey Mitchell) and officials of the Union worked on the matter until after 11 p.m."

TERMS ON WHICH SETTLEMENT LIKELY

By B. T. RICHARDSON

Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.—Terms on which the steel strike is likely to be settled over the week-end include establishment of 55 cents an hour as basic wage, with an added provision that any reduction in the cost of living will not mean a reduction in this figure, which represents substantial cost of living bonuses.

This means an increase of 4½ cents an hour at Algoma and 2½ cents at Sydney. But the Algoma figure includes five cents cost of living bonus, the Sydney figure nine cents bonus. If future reductions in the cost of living would require reductions in cost of living bonuses, the steel workers will be exempt from such reductions.

The government's latest proposals will be submitted to steel workers meeting at the Soo and at Sydney tomorrow. Meanwhile no official announcement of the terms is being made here.

The federal government will also implement the proposals it made last Tuesday, in which steel will become a national industry, subject to the National War Labor Board. The board will also have a new chairman, succeeding Hon. Humphrey Mitchell.

Reclassification of all jobs in the basic steel industry will be one of the first steps to be undertaken, if the strike ends.

Ottawa officials were obviously hopeful of the strike ending on Monday morning, with full steel production resumed. Union leaders likewise expected the strike to end over the week-end, and sentiment among the strikers themselves was reported to have taken a turn in the last day or so against continuing the strike.

The new chairman of the National War Labor Board will be announced soon, and the name of Mr. Justice Richards of Winnipeg is mentioned as a possible selection.

board's headquarters of any one in Edmonton being out of coal, officials stated. However, several cases of one householder with more than sufficient supply sharing with another who ran out have been brought to the notice of officials.

Milk deliveries are being maintained and dairy officials anticipated no hold-up over the week-end.

While the temperature has not warmed up appreciably, some hope was felt in the fact that it had not lowered again. It was for the third day in a row that the low point had registered 39 below.

NORTH IS COLD

In the north, temperatures were slightly higher than the day before. McMurray, as usual, held the spotlight for the lowest temperature, it recording 49 below. House River was second with 48. At Fort St. John it was 24 below.

Vancouver has had almost a record low with only four degrees above zero. Temperatures in northern Saskatchewan dropped to as low as 49 below. Calgary registered 28 below and Lethbridge 32.

Although during the first days of the cold spell residents were content to go around "as usual," with each succeeding day pride in appearing not to mind the cold has gone by the board.

A RECORD

An almost all-time record for Edmonton is the fact that there is scarcely a pair of sheer hose to be seen. Heavy woollen stockings keep damsels' shapely legs from freezing

The men too have adopted a variety of head-gear. Fur-lined helmets are much in evidence while one enterprising citizen was seen with a turban wrapped around his head in Persian style.

The forecast promises little change. It reads "moderate to fresh winds generally fair and cold."

Churches in Edmonton are feeling the fuel shortage as well as homes, and it was reported that the coal supply of several were becoming "dangerously" low. Ministers in Edmonton agreed Saturday that unless there was no relief in the cold weather and if fuel supplies continued to dwindle it would be necessary to hold next week's services in smaller rooms.

AT WETASKIWIN

At Wetaskiwin where the new army training centre No. 133 has not yet opened, 50 tons of coal was released for distribution in the town. The release was ordered by Brig. F. M. W. Harvey, V.C., M.C., officer commanding M.D. 13, who was notified of the situation.

At Bashaw, about 120 miles south of Edmonton, the coal shortage is reported to be serious. At Hardisty, however, coal rationing has been going on for some time and as a result there has been no serious shortage there. Tofield and Vermilion report that conditions there are "relatively good". At Rimbey and Myrnam it is reported that there is one week's supply on hand while at Vegreville the situation is under control.

At Red Deer the situation was somewhat relieved by the arrival of five cars of coal.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 23

North Africa: Fire-blackened Tripoli fell to the assault of British shock troops at 5 a.m. today and vanguards of the 8th Army lunged on in pursuit of Rommel's columns retreating into Tunisia.

At least part of Rommel's battered forces, estimated at approximately 63,000 troops, had fled across the Libyan frontier and were reported in contact with Col.-Gen. Jurgen Von Arnim's Axis army behind the Mareth line, 65 miles inside Tunisia.

As the campaign now turned to the bleak coastal plain hard-pressed French troops in Tunisia, aided by Anglo-American reinforcements, have blocked German tank-led thrusts in the hills southwest of Pont Du Fahs, 30 miles below Tunis, and French and British troops have advanced several miles in the valley of Oudd Kebir.

Russia: The Russians reported they had captured the rail hub and German air base at Salsk, 100 miles southeast of Rostov; stormed to within 10 miles of the great Donets valley industrial centre at Voroshilovgrad after a 10-mile advance and captured nine towns southwest of Velikie Luki on the central (Moscow) front.

Europe: R.A.F. bombers returned to the assault on Hitler's great war foundries in the German Ruhr, striking for the second time in 24 hours and the 13th time this month.

Pacific Theatre: Australian and United States troops smashed the last organized resistance by survivors of a 15,000-man Japanese army on the Papuan peninsula in New Guinea, ending a six-months campaign.

On the Burma front, R.A.F. bombers and fighters rained new havoc on the Japanese armies in widespread attacks.

Wavell's land forces, driving back into Burma from India, were reported to have brought up their field guns and shelled the Japanese position at Donbiak, on the Mayu peninsula, north of the big enemy base at Akyab.

Eighth Army Takes Tripoli: Chasing Enemy

Axis bases in Tunisia were hammered, too.

Radio Morocco reported that Allied planes on westward sweeps beyond Tripoli had attacked Axis troops only 18 miles from the Tunisian port of Gabes.

Brig. Gen. Jacques LeClerc's Fighting French forces from the Lake Chad region were reported to have turned toward Tunisia and the Mareth line along the border, where Marshal Erwin Rommel was believed to be hoping to hole up for a while and give his Africa Corps a breathing spell.

MAY CUT OFF NAZIS

A dispatch from a British United Press correspondent in southern Tunisia had hinted that American paratroops and infantry, along with French forces, might soon stab to the coast, cutting the Africa Corps off in a narrow, desolate corridor.

Three months to a day from the start of his smashing offensive at El Alamein, more than 1,300 miles to the east, Lt.-Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery's desert - hardened empire troops were swinging down the narrow, twisted streets of Tripoli, and under the marble triumphal arch that the Caesars built.

A column that had by-passed Tripoli moved ahead on Zuara, 70 miles west of Tripoli, along a road that was a graveyard of Axis tanks, trucks and troops.

Beyond the border lay the old French Mareth line of forts, Ben Gardane, 20 miles inside Tunisia, Medenine, 48 miles west of Ben Gardane, and Gabes, 45 miles north of Medenine, the first big enemy base and anchor point of the corridor to the north.

ARMIES 300 MILES APART

The Italians' once pretentious African empire was for practical purposes gone.

Only 300 miles by land separated the forces of Montgomery and the British First Army, the American Fifth Army and strong French forces in Tunisia. Only 200 miles separated them by air, and British and American planes from Africa and Tripolitania over-lapped in an eternal pounding of the fleeing Africa Corps.

Rommel's ultimate plan presumably was to flee to northern Tunisia, and join forces with Col. Gen. Hans Arnim in holding a small bridgehead encompassing Tunis and Bizerte. If he could get there, the two Axis forces might total 150,000 men. The Allies were believed to have two or three times that many.

At best, it was believed, the Axis planned to fight only a delaying action in northern Tunisia, to give the Germans time to prepare their European defences before the Allies swarm on to the continent.

GREAT ADVANTAGES

Tripoli, besides being a great symbolic victory, was of great potential benefit to the Allies. It has a magnificent harbor, presently clogged with wrecked ships sunk by British and American bombers. Great Castel Benito airdrome, 10 miles south of Tripoli, will give the Allies a nearby base for operations against the Axis in Tunisia

Radio Morocco said the Axis retreat was now a complete rout.

The Germans and Italians were understood to have blown up many military installations in Tripoli before they fled west toward Tunisia, with bombing and machine gunning British and American planes flocking over them like sea gulls.

Reconnaissance reports said most of the Africa Corps was across the border and for all practical purposes the sun had set on Benito Mussolini's dream of an Italian empire. One hundred miles or less of barren coastline was left the Italians and they, with their Nazi Allies were fleeing it without thought of fight.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The United States employment service got a job for a 102-year-old toolmaker. Cold Imposes Hardships on Three Children

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

PONOKA, Jan. 23. — Nobody wants to hang around outside in this weather but to be actually stuck would appear to be a really horrifying experience.

This was the case of little June Patterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Patterson. Returning home from school in 40 below zero weather, June, with unusual hardiness, stuck her tongue on to a steel railing of the bridge spanning the Battle River and immediately became fast-rooted.

Terrified companions of the child tried to release her with no avail. Attendants at the hospital fortunately arrived on the scene and managed to release the child by warming the steel sufficiently with cigarette lighters.

She was, however, badly torn about the mouth and tongue.

A second child was found partially unconscious on the road by two young men, and carried to safety. Had she not been found she would have frozen in a few minutes for the temperature was between 40 and 50 below zero.

Still another child was found buried in a snow drift until only the top of her cap could be seen and a passerby, hearing her cries, went to her rescue. After being taken to a nearby house and warmed up she appeared no worse for her experience.

New Glory Won By Airmen For Their Country

If he seems to be a good prospect for air crew, but lacks schooling, he is given the additional schooling right in the air force.

The case of Schmidt was somewhat different. In the summer of 1940 the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan was still in the early confusion that attends development of all such gigantic projects.

The boy from Millet went up to the recruiting office and told the clerk at the counter he wanted to be a pilot. At that time a person just about had to have wings sprouting from his shoulders to be even considered for air crew training

The clerk gave Schmidt some papers to fill out and told him to come back in a few days. Later the young fellow from Millet was told to come back again.

Never did a youth have his heart more set on flying an airplane in the R.C.A.F. than the schoolboy from Millet. But he was getting panicky. He feared he was being given the "run-around."

In desperation he went with his father, Herb Schmidt of Millet, to see a trusted friend of the family, Mr. Wiggins, whose office in in the McLeod building.

PLEADS FOR CHANCE

"Tell them I'll enlist as anything and then perhaps they'll give me a chance to fly once I get in uniform," the youthful Schmidt had pleaded.

Mr. Wiggins called up FO. Thompson, with whom he was acquainted, and asked if it would be convenient for him to have a talk with Schmidt.

FO. Thompson granted the request and the Schmidts, father and son, were soon at the recruiting office

The officer listened carefully and studied the youth's face as Dallas poured out his pleas for admittance to the air force, repeating that he would join up "as anything' as long as "I get a chance."

Finally FO. Thompson walked over and patted young Schmidt on the back and said:

"You don't want to go in the ground crew; you want to be a pilot. We need your kind as pilots, too."

Dallas nearly swooned with joy but he had one more terrible moment. He has a slightly stiff arm, the result of an accident. The examining doctors shook their heads. A couple of veteran bush pilots were being examined at the time. A doctor turned to them and asked:

"Do you think an arm like that would hamper a pilot?" he asked.

One of the bush pilots looked at the youngster. He saw the intense anxiety in Schmidts face. Then he turned to the doctor.

GETS GREEN LIGHT

"That arm'll never bother him a bit." He winked at Schmidt Sr., as he spoke, but the doctor missed the signal. Dallas Schmidt passed his tests and became a member of the R.C.A.F. on Jan. 8, 1941.

Now he is Flt. Lieut. Dallas Schmidt, D.F.C. and bar. He has shot at least seven enemy planes from the skies above the embattled fortress of Malta, and is credited with sending two enemy merchant ships to the bottom of the Mediterranean. Recently he also shot down two large Junkers troop transports that were trying to ferry reinforcements across to the badly-mauled Afrika Korps.

On January 6, Mr. Wiggins received the following cablegram from far-away Malta:

"Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. All well. Dal Schmidt."

Some months ago the Millet youth flew alongside of PO. Buzz Beurling on an operational flight against the enemy, near Malta.

Pope Arranged Exchange for Allied Captive

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(CP)—Petty Officer of the Royal Navy Albert Penny today told of his escape from an Italian prison camp and how he took refuge in Vatican City where he met the Pope and was allowed to go about the Church domain as he liked during his three months' internment.

Penny, who has been repatriated as a result of Vatican negotiations for his exchange for an Italian prisoner of equal rank, said he saw the Pope in the small throne room for a few minutes.

"He asked me about my wife and family and whether I was pleased to be going home. He gave my wife and myself his blessings and presented me with a rosary with a silver crusifix for each of us and a photograph of himself."

Penny is a Roman Catholic.

U.S. Transport Plane Missing On Ocean Hop

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP)—The United States navy reported yesterday that a transport seaplane, with 19 persons aboard, is overdue on a flight from Pearl Harbor to San Francisco.

No report from the big plane has been received since early Thursday morning when it circled in the vicinity of San Francisco, the navy said.

The navy also reported last night that one of its twin-engined cargo transport land-type plane is overdue after taking off at 5:40 p.m. Thursday from Winslow, Ariz., for San Pedro, Calif. Aboard the cargo plane were three officers and three men, cargo and mail.

In the absence of definite information as to the fate of the plane from Pearl Harbor, the navy declined to give out any information regarding the identity of those aboard or to give any details about the flight or the plane itself, except to say that it was a four-engined seaplane.

Cafes are trying to operate with candles, and candles are also seen in stores and other buildings, while old oil lamps have been put back into service.

Bake shops are closed because of the power failure and a serious situation may arise if the power break is prolonged as a shortage of bread is certain to develop.

USE AUTO MOTORS

The flour mill and machine shop is carrying on by using automobile motors, powered by natural gas.

Girls in the bank are working in their overcoats owing to the bitter cold.

The superintendent with power linemen at Vegreville have arrived to assist in attempts to restart the local plant.

Cliff Hoskins, of Hoskins and Gallagher, is battling desperately in the meantime to get the plant going, but so far his efforts have been without success.

No 'Warning' Here On Auto Licenses

CALGARY, Jan. 23.—(CP)—Because in this province the action is unnecessary, the Alberta Motor Association is not advising its many members to refrain from buying 1943 license plates until new gasoline ration books are issued, when ration changes may be made.

New plates are on sale in April in Alberta. The 1943 gas ration books come out at the same time.

In British Columbia car license plates expire earlier—about the end of February. It is reported that motor associations there are advising their members against buying car licenses prematurely, in case there is a cut in the amount of gas allowed for pleasure driving.

The Red Army reached within 10 miles of Voroshilovgrad, on the east, when it took the railroad junction town of Kondrashevskaya yesterday. They were closing in also on the northeast and north, driving for a focal point of the German defensive-offensive system in southern Russia.

As they closed in on Voroshilovgrad today, the Russians defeated the one counter-attack which the Germans essayed, routing 2,000 men supported by tanks. The Germans lost eight tanks. In another sector 200 Germans were killed and three tanks destroyed.

On the Salsk front, the Russians were advancing down the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railroad on Belaya Glina, 40 miles southwest of Salsk and 40 miles northeast of Tikhoretsk.

Yesterday the Russians had taken, on this front, Konstantinovsk, 65 miles east of Rostov near the confluence of the Don Donets, and Novy Yegorik, 20 miles east of Salsk.

GREAT VICTORY

The Russians in taking Salsk below the Don and Mikoyan Shakharin in the Caucasus mountains had won two of their biggest victories.

Salsk was the second big German air base the Russians had taken recently. The first was Tatzinskaya, west of Stalingrad, where 300 planes at the airdrome and 50 on railroad flat cars were captured intact.

The pushing back of German air bases to the west was regarded as of most important effect on Russian offensive operations all the way from the north Caucasus to the Donets Basin.

SYDNEY, N.S., Jan. 23.—(CP)—The city council is considering seeking legislation to allow taxation of women wage-earners receiving more than $660 annually. Heavy enlistments among the male population have caused a sharp decrease in the city's revenue within the past year or two.

C.C.F. Leader Urges Over-All Post-War Plan

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.—(CP)—M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said in an address prepared for broadcast last night, three vital steel mills are idle because "the arbitrary price and wage freezing policy adopted in this country decrees that men employed in this arduous and hazardous occupation should work for a wage that is demonstrably too low."

In his first radio address over the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation since his election as C.C.F. leader last year, Mr. Coldwell said the C.C.F. calls for the immediate establishment of a post-war planning commission "truly representative of all classes in the community."

BASIC WAGE REFUSED

Canadian authorities had refused and continued to refuse the steelworkers a basic wage that would still be too low for a decent standard of living but would, at least, give the workers and their families adequate subsistence, he said.

(An estimated 13,500 workers are idle because of strikes at the Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., plant of Algoma Steel Corp., and at the Sydney, N.S., and Trenton, N.S., steel plants of Dominion Steel and Coal Corp.)

"What can these men think of a war effort that does not hesitate to spend hundreds of millions of dollars to assist private industry but refuses to give 13,000 workers a couple of million dollars a year to improve their depressed and sub-standard conditions?" Mr. Coldwell asked.

"By this sort of policy we harm our war effort. But we do more than that. We store up serious trouble and perpetuate injustice for the post-war period."

Because there had been no over-all democratic plan, much of the integration brought about in war-time had been placed in the hands of representatives of powerful financial, industrial and business interests. The work should be done by national administrators paid only by the state and responsible to the people's representatives, said Mr. Coldwell.

"WORKING DEMOCRACY"

Having effected a change to a "full, working democracy" in war planning, the C.C.F., using the experienced gained, would retain all the economic controls and social agencies necessary for the maintenance of full employment in the post-war period, Mr. Coldwell said.

To ensure the least dislocation in changing from war to peace, the C.C.F. called for the immediate establishment of a post-war planning commission representative of all classes. The commission would establish equally-representative regional bodies and encourage local planning committees to study conditions and to formulate plans for the consideration of the regional and provincial committees who, in turn, would report to the national committee.

Schemes should be prepared for the development of mineral resources, electric power and waterways, irrigation of certain regions, and electrification of rural areas.

Forests required protection from "private exploitation and government neglect." Soil surveys should be carried on and uses for agricultural products should be sought by research and social planning.

MUST BE REHOUSED

Canada must be rehoused, Mr. Coldwell said. The present conditions of congestion and lack of sanitary and other modern conveniences, especially in rural areas, were "a blot" on the nation and a threat to public health.

Rural rehabilitation must be undertaken on a nationwide scale. The C.C.F. criticism of the present system was that too few farmers and too few people generally had homes or farms they could truly call their own.

The development of co-operative communities with comprehensive plans for security and social betterment would lay the broad foundations on which farm families could build "a full and creative life."

A national security system, similar to that in New Zealand, should be devised for Canada. Every citizen had the right to protection by society and in return society had the right to expect service from everyone, according to his ability.

"In addition to the economic plans I have suggested, a fundamental policy is the socialization of the banking and financial system," he said.

"No successful use of the nation's currency and credit is possible without it."

Mr. Coldwell said he is grateful to the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's board of governors and management for permitting him to speak over the National network and hopes means will be found to provide for more frequent and perhaps joint discussions of the programs and policies of the political parties represented in the House.

VICTORY SESSION

He said he hopes the session of parliament opening next Wednesday will mark long steps towards complete victory.

"The C.C.F. has said from the beginning that we can achieve a successful and complete war effort only by mobilizing every human and material resource without regard to special privilege, property rights or profits," he said.

"Nor can we secure such an effort until we bring all groups in the community into full partnership in the conduct of the war. Our failure to achieve this is largely responsible for our difficulties."

Mr Coldwell then cited the case of the idle steel mills.

In strengthening the determination of the peoples fighting the Axis "Imperialists" Canada should declare that the four freedoms "are not mere empty words but that they are the real and honest purpose of the United Nations' effort in this war."

It should be clear that this was "no ordinary war" but in the best and truest sense of the term was a part of the people's revolution to usher in a new era of brotherhood and security for all the peoples of the earth.

Canada had demonstrated what full employment meant in terms of productive output. With more than 600,000 of the fittest young men in uniform, Canada in 1942 produced almost twice as much as it did 10 years ago.

MUST BENEFIT ALL

"And what we have accomplished for destruction we should be able to do for construction and the benefit of all."

In urging that necessary economic controls and social agencies be maintained after the war, the C.C.F. differed sharply from other political parties which placed their faith in the return to what they called private enterprise and individual initiative.

"They say that we are advocating regimentation when, as a matter of fact, we are merely urging that we establish a rule of law, an extension of the principle that democracy is government, not anarchy, and government of the people, by the people, for the people at that," the C.C.F. leader said.

Young men overseas were not thinking of pre-war ways.

"Wistfully today a generation of the best-educated and highly-intelligent young men now overseas are casting their eyes back to Canada—a land which during their absence from it they have grown to love even more than they loved it before.

NEVER ACCEPT RELIEF

"One who has been much among them told me very recently that our boys are more intensely patriotic, in the best sense of the word, than they have ever been. They want to return to a land which they can make the Canada of which they dream. They will not go back to long lines of relief, to crowds around government employment agencies or to riding the rods

"Let us not be like the Bourbons who learned nothing and so perished in the end."

The C.C.F. believed Canadian institutions were good, if they were used as they should be used.

LAST TRAIN FROM BERLIN

BY HOWARD K. SMITH

for an exit permit and should get it after the week-end. Departures from Berlin were always bibulous occasions and some of the boys were mellow already. With me I had a fat bottle of champagne I had been saving for the departure, if and when that event should ever mature. We popped off the cork and had a community sip. I was enjoying myself more than I had for months, and suggested that maybe it would be a good idea to stay just another day and celebrate the way these things ought to be celebrated. The others overheard me and poured me into the train and it left. The German friends waved white handkerchiefs in the blackout until I was out of sight.

STARED INTO NIGHT

I felt too good to sleep so I removed the blackout curtains from the window and stared out in the blackout all night, listening to the rhythmic clicking of the wheels. Dawn came up surprisingly swiftly. On one side of us was the Rhine. Across it I could see the green bunkers of the Maginot Line, with their guns removed. On the other side of us I could see the grey bunkers of the Siegfried line, the Westwall. The railway tracks ran right between them.

At Freiburg, I climbed out of the coach and bought the morning Voelkischer Boebachter. The date on the top of the newspaper was December 7, 1941.

Peace, brother; it's wonderful! Peace is unbelievable. You cannot take somebody's word for it. You must spend two years in the Berlin blackout some time when you have nothing else to do, and then go to Switzerland suddenly, if you want to love Peace the way Peace deserves to be loved. Berlin is the color of a cadaver I once saw preserved in a big jar in a medical school; grey, lifeless and sickening to look at. The moment you cross the Swiss border the atmosphere changes, as if by a miracle. There was life, and there was color in everything. It was the life and color of normality, which I had forgotten. People's faces downright beautiful. They would have been I suppose, ordinary to anybody else, but to me they were lovely, tinted with the color showing there was life going on inside of them. Color in cheeks and eyes. No red rims around the eyes. Facial muscles were relaxed and they smiled easily, as though there was no particular reason why they shouldn't smile. December 7 was just one more day in Switzerland, but it marked an epoch in my young life; the way eyes sparkled, not because they were happier today than yesterday, but just because they were healthy, at peace with clear consciences and normal.

SAT GAWKING

I sat in the Bahnhof restaurant in Basle gawking at things like a country visitor in the big city. I have never had such a kick out of just looking at plain, ordinary people, and ordinary things. Along one whole side of the restaurant was an endless glass show case filled with things to eat, cakes with colored icing, chocolate, sandwiches, with large slices of ham in them, fish, lobster, and at the end three beer-taps which flowed beer almost constantly. On the counter by the beer-taps were about three dozen bottles of all kinds of liquor, including whiskey. The menu was filled to the margins with hors d'oeuvres, entrees and desserts. There were exactly fifty-two entrees. The German menus offered one entree. I asked the waitress if it were all there for ordering, or was it only Attrapen to impress visitors. She said it was there to sell, and to test her I picked out the most unlikely dish I could find in the middle of the menu. And, surely enough, it was brought to me in fifteen minutes on a big platter brimming over with luscious green peas, red carrots and potatoes, fried crisp and brown in good fat.

In Berne that night, the street-lights were on. Now that is a sight to see. It made me feel naked in front of an audience, and downright giggly, as a thirteen-year-old girl in her first two-piece bathing suit. It makes every street-corner look like a stage-setting. I walked the streets for hours. Not on the sidewalks, but in the streets, grinning and happy.

I had a room in the Schweizer Hof, across from the station. In the hotel bar, I met a couple of newspapermen I had known in Berlin. They treated me to welcome whiskeys, then we had dinner. I had a T-bone steak big as a ham and almost two inches thick, garnished with six different vegetables. Afterwards I had a bicarbonate of soda, and went to my room to be alone and think. I filled my pipe with good American tobacco I had bought, and turned out the light. I sat before the window looking down on the streets outside and smoked a long time until the telephone rang. It was the Portier downstairs whom I had asked to let me know if a Mr. Conger from Berlin should arrive in the next couple of days. He said he was only calling to tell me, because I might be interested to know, that Mr. Conger was not coming, because ten minutes ago the Japanese, Germany's Ally, had bombed Manila and Pearl Harbor, and no more Americans could get out of Germany.

C.P. Railway To Dispose of Prize Cattle

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 23—The Canadian Pacific Railway's Department of Natural Resources at Calgary is completing arrangements to sell at auction some 375 head of purebred cattle from its demonstration farms in southern Alberta.

W. A. Mather, vice-president of western lines, said it had been decided to disperse the herd of 250 head of Holsteins at the company's Strathmore farm, near Calgary, and another 125 head of registered Aberdeen-Angus cattle on the C.P.R. farm at Coaldale, near Lethbridge, because it was felt that the purpose for which these herds were set up and developed—namely the improvement of breeding stock in western Canada, has been fulfilled.

TWO-DAY SALE

A. Griffin, manager of the Canadian Pacific's Department of Natural Resources at Calgary, and John McCulloch, superintendent of agriculture and animal industry have arranged to offer about 250 head of Holsteins at a two day sale to be held at Waukesha, Wisconsin, April 12 and 13, and later a sale in Canada, probably in Calgary, will be arranged to dispose of some 125 Angus cattle.

The Wisconsin city was chosen because of its significance as one of the leading Holstein centres of the mid-west and because of its central location which will be convenient for both eastern and western Canadian breeders, as well as for American breeders, who will attend the sale.

Defence Workers Plan Short Shifts To Avert Lay-Offs

WINNIPEG, Jan. 23.—(CP)—Workers at Defence Industries Limited here late yesterday voted to work shorter time so that about 175 men scheduled to be laid off Saturday could remain on the job. The shorter hour plan, proposed by the Employees' Relation Council at the plant, provides that each employee will work one day less every two weeks and accept the loss of one day's pay.

Dear

This week has been rather a hectic one from the weather standpoint, with temperatures ranging down to the 52 below zero reading of Wednesday, the coldest on record since Jan. 13, 1911. At present writing there is no indication of a let-up, and temperatures are sub-normal over the prairies and in some sections of Ontario and the middlewest States. Our butter ration, which has been fixed at one-half pound per person per week, was given a jolt on Wednesday, when Ottawa announced a one-third cut. This means each person will get only two pounds to last for the next six weeks instead of three.

Monday

Proclamation calling the next session of members of the Alberta legislative assembly appears in the current issue of the Alberta Gazette. The proclamation sets the time of opening at 3 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 18. Since the recruiting office sub-station was opened in downtown Edmonton last August, a total of 1,710 men and women have been interviewed with regard to enlistment in the Canadian Army and Canadian Women's Army Corps, and 1,037 actually applied for enlistment.

Dr. W. H. Swift, recently-appointed chief inspector of schools, will make a sweeping survey of the school teacher shortage in Alberta with a view to ascertaining how many of the temporary teachers, engaged to relieve the current shortage, will be available for the term that opens next September. A bill to amend the Edmonton city charter, giving the city power to levy taxes for post-war construction, is one of the three private bills to be introduced at the next session of the legislature.

Here are the week-end N.H.L. results: Boston 6, Rangers 3; Canadiens 2, Toronto 0; Detroit 2, Chicago 2; Toronto 8, Canadiens 4; Rangers 5, Boston 7; Chicago 1, Detroit 1.

Tuesday

Edmonton Trades and Labor Council at a meeting last night voiced a demand for rationing of all goods in which a scarcity exists or is developing. Delegates expressed the opinion that rationing was the only fair method of handling commodities in which scarcity was being experienced.

A major system of priorities on steel, copper and aluminum in Canada, designed to adjust production programs to conform with the materials supply in Canada and the United States, was outlined to a large group of city businessmen today by E. N. Dack, Winnipeg, regional priorities officer. Little things like living up in the north country 60 miles from the nearest railroad and never having driven a car, aren't going to stop pretty Thelma Howe of Fort St. John, B.C., from becoming a transport driver in the Women's Division of the R.C.A.F. Thelma, who is just 18, and has only been down from the north twice in her life, was on hand yesterday morning at the R.C.A.F. recruiting office. Told that she had to have some experience driving before she could enlist as a transport driver, Thelma had an answer for that one too. She would stay with an uncle at Three Hills and drive his car until she acquired enough experience.

Temperatures in Edmonton hit 41 below during the night, and it appears we are in for a spell of really frigid weather. Heavy fog started to rise from the river valley shortly before dusk and by midnight had become so thick over the city that it was possible to see only a block ahead. From the valley the lights of the city were completely blacked out.

Third street fatality in 17 days occurred Monday when Mrs. James Harvey, 28, of 10920 98 street, died in the Royal Alex. hospital 13 hours after being struck by a truck owned by the Edmonton street railway. The accident occurred at Kingsway (Portage) and 101 street. Driver of the truck was Ernest A. Shillabeer, 12131 97 street. Mrs. Harvey, according to police, ran out from behind a parked car into the path of the truck.

Wednesday

Fog-enveloped, shivering, and faced with a possible gas shortage, we woke up this morning to the coldest day the city has experienced since Jan. 13, 1911. From a high point of 34 below on Tuesday the temperature gradually went down to record a new low of 52 below zero during the night to equal the low mark set in 1911. By 3 p.m., however, the mercury had clambered back to 34 below. Added to the frozen look of the city was the heavy ground fog which thickened as the mercury dropped. To make matters worse a break occurred in the main gas line just east of the city early in the day, and an order was issued to turn furnaces and all other gas appliances off, with the exception of cook stoves. At this point we were faced with one of the most critical periods in the city's history.

Acting swiftly to prevent a complete breakdown in the supply of gas to Edmonton residents and industrial plants, repair crews of Northwestern Utilities Ltd. located the break in the main line feeding the city, and within five hours of the detection of the falling pressure, emergency repairs had been effected and the continuance of the gas supply to the city was assured. Moving simultaneously with the fast repair work being done on the pipe line, the Gas Company office staff went into action and had many large industrial firms switch from gas to oil heating where standby oil heating plants were installed. Where coal heating standby furnaces and boilers were available the switch was made to coal. This action was taken to lessen the consumption of gas to make what remained in the lines available to residential users who were not able to make the switch from gas to either coal or oil. This prompt action on the part of the Gas Company averted what might have been a very serious situation, and we got off lightly with just an hour or so of chilly homes and offices.

You might be interested to know that Alberta's milk production reached a new high level in 1942. Total amount of milk produced in the province during the year was 1,799,858,500 pounds. Thursday

Accidents are continuing to take their toll in Edmonton. Today a man—Ferdinand Bill, 10151 95 street—was injured when hit by the side of a skidding city bus at Jasper and 95 street. Although the temperature has risen slightly today the difference is hardly noticeable after yesterday's record-breaking 52 below mark. During last night the temperature was 39 below, but at 11 a.m. today the reading was 41 below. That's still plenty cold as you know.

Reports of cities, towns and villages throughout the province now facing real hardship due to a combination of cold weather and a shortage of fuel, continue to be heard here. At Red Deer, it is reported that many families are burning wood torn from fences and sheds in order to keep warm. At Lacombe, one dealer stated that a single carload of coal had to be divided between 64 people, each getting about half a ton. At Grimshaw and Fairview it was reported it was impossible to get coal, and deliveries of wood were restricted due to the icy condition of the roads.

The traffic accident that took the life of John Donald Campbell, at 107 street and Whyte avenue on Jan. 13, was unavoidable owing to the icy and dark condition of the street. That was the verdict given at the inquest into the fatality held yesterday afternoon. Campbell was struck by a skidding light delivery truck driven by Theodore "Ted" Bartz, age 19.

Friday

Leo Paradis, motorman on the "Owl" street car that turned over at 97 avenue and 109 street on January 14, injuring 13 persons, none seriously, will be dismissed from the service. Thomas Ferrier, street railway superintendent, recommended the dismissal of Paradis to city commissioners who concurred in the action. The three other motormen who were riding in the front vestibule of the tram at the time of the accident, have been reprimanded and placed at the bottom of the spare list for 14 days.

Hon. E. C. Manning, provincial secretary and minister of trade and industry, will represent Alberta at a conference in Ottawa on Jan. 28, when the question of compensating the provinces for revenue lost through Dominion regulations, will be discussed with Premier King.

Saturday

Still cold and no sign of a let-up.

The Edmonton Ministerial Association has protested to Hon. J. L. Ralston, minister of national defence, against the proposed opening of motion picture theatres on Sunday in Halifax, Toronto and this city, for the free entertainment of men of the armed services.

Mrs. A. Christiansen's rink won the Grand Challenge event in the annual Alberta Women's Bonspiel at the Royal curling rink Friday afternoon, defeating Mrs. C. Cameron's rink 12-4. The winner is a Royal Club representative, and Mrs. Cameron curls at Alberta Avenue rink. The 'spiel as a whole was a great success, although handicapped by the extreme weather.

That's all for now. Best of luck until next week.

"I'm Rationing My Phone Calls Until After the War, John"

"The Telephone System is having quite a time handling the wartime load in Edmonton because it can't add the telephone lines and equipment that it needs, so it's up to all of us to help spread the available telephone service among as many people as possible. I'm more careful now about how many calls I place and how long they last. I figure five minutes as the outside limit for most calls. Maybe we were talking too much, anyhow. The folks in the States are advising, 'Shoot more and talk less'. Sounds like a good idea. You'd hardly believe it, John, but my wife has cut out most of the telephone gossiping. Figures it is just another little way she can help."

Disease Prevention

Dr. G. M. Little, Edmonton's medical health officer, appeals to the parents of this city to take extreme care to see that their children are given the available prevention for communicable diseases. He cites the case of an 8-year-old girl, who died this week of diphtheria, whose life might have been saved had she been given the protective inoculations.

Dr. Little's statement is a matter of concern for each Edmonton parent and for the entire Edmonton community. Every child who contracts a communicable disease not only brings sorrow and distress into his or her own immediate family, but develops into a medium through which the disease may be extended throughout wide areas of the city and thus threaten the lives of countless other children.

To take full advantage of the protective measures offered, therefore, is both a family and a community duty. Dr. Little's appeal will be endorsed and emphasized by every person of judgment and sense.

Sturdy New Canadians

The Alberta branches of the Ukrainian Canadian Association meet in convention in Edmonton today and tomorrow. And Canadians of an older citizenship are happy to welcome them.

The Slavic peoples have made excellent settlers in this country. They are ambitious, energetic and persistent. In their victory over the difficulties of a new land, they have demonstrated exactly those same qualities of head and heart that have enabled their relatives in Europe to throw back the hordes of Hitler.

When one marvels at the dauntless determination that has enabled Russians and Ukrainians to repel the German invader, one need only look at the pertinacity and courage of hundreds of Slavic settlers in Alberta who have persevered to make a success in their adopted country.

The Ukrainians have made good citizens. The degree of their success in this respect is measured by the extent to which they incorporate themselves into Canadian national life with a minimum of looking back.

Back to Work?

The strike at Canada's steel plants is an "outlaw" strike. It was started in defiance of the law of the land, and also without any authorization by the officials of the steel-workers' union. Unwittingly it may be supposed, the strikers thus put themselves in a position of political and industrial anarchy. They are at the same time defying the Government and demanding that the Government compel their employers to raise their pay, even if this involves the payment of subsidies from the public treasury. They are also flouting the authority of their union leaders and expecting the organization at large to back them up in doing so.

The Government and union officials have reached an agreement which one of the latter says is a fair basis for settlement. The striking employees may accept this or they may not. Their attitude of disregard to the authority of the officers of their organization gives no assurance that they will. But reflection must have shown the majority that this attitude is both unreasonable and untenable. Finding themselves in a similar position, the miners in Pennsylvania abandoned the rebellious pose and went back to work. There is room to hope that the steel-workers will follow the same sensible course.

The Run for Tunisia

If the Afrika Korps can dodge and fight its way through to a junction with the Axis forces in Tunisia, the enemy will then have an army estimated at 150,000 men in the French protectorate. That Rommel has any other aim in view is now improbable, for he has refused battle at better positions than any that lie ahead in Libya.

As the remnant of the army which set out to conquer Egypt is supposed to be about 40,000 strong, this estimate implies that more than 100,000 men have been smuggled across the Sicilian bridge since the Allies invaded Morocco and Algiers at the beginning of November; for there were few if any Axis forces in Tunisia at that time.

If it is surprising that so many enemy troops have been ferried and flown across the narrows in face of Allied air and water patrol, the feat equally shows that once the Tunisian tip is in Allied hands the invasion of Italy will be practicable. The strait which the Axis forces have crossed can be crossed in the other direction by Allied forces, with better protection from air and sea craft.

Whether the Rommel refugees can reach their comrades in Tunisia is the question. If not, the enemy forces there will be denied valuable reinforcements, for no one has denied that the Afrika Korps knows how to fight as well as how to run. That it is still an organized force after retreating 1,100 miles in 83 days is proof of its discipline and staying quality. But it is being subjected now to air attack from two directions, while Allied ground forces from three directions are converging upon it. The outcome of the long chase should be settled before many days.

They Prefer to Do It

Edmonton taxpayers set a new record during the first half of this month in the prepayment of the tax bills they have not yet received. The total on Wednesday was $1,222,114.13, with more cheques probably still due to arrive because of delayed mails. This sum is nearly $16,000 more than the previous high mark of 1941; representing a good many small payments, and these have been a conspicuous feature in this year's receipts.

In view of the general employment condition this gain in prepayments is not unexpected. But the "times" do not seem to govern prepayment totals. With the exception of last year, when times were relatively good, the total has been larger each year than it was the year before, ever since the prepayment system was started in 1938. And not all these have been "good" years in the sense that conditions were better each year than in the year preceding.

The quite obvious fact is that prepaying taxes is growing more popular as time passes. The proportion of small payments has increased substantially, showing that more and more taxpayers are finding it desirable to pay in advance. The financial inducement cannot altogether account for this, for the saving works out at only about 2 per cent. Perhaps the main inducement to the average taxpayer is the satisfaction of "getting it over with" early and being free of tax worries for the rest of the year.

In any case, there is no longer room to doubt that the prepayment system has come to stay. If it were proposed to abandon it now, there would be a lively protest from the taxpayers. For, "believe it or not," a large and steadily growing number of these do like to pay in advance.

Mrs. Edmonton's Block Plan

Citizens' Volunteer Bureau Needs Many Helpers, So Call 28876

By MARY ALICE QUAYNE

Mrs. Edmonton is getting a personal invitation to participate in the winning of the war. This opportunity to serve comes from the newly organized Citizens Volunteer Bureau.

The Bureau needs over a thousand women immediately for various civilian war duties. Don't think that you are too busy to help because even if you can give only a hour or two a week, that much will be helping and greatly appreciated.

The Air Raid Precautions Committee under the leadership of Capt. A. J. Huff have already done a splendid job. To do their work they have divided Edmonton into twenty zones and each zone is broken down into sectors. This map with its dividing lines and numbers is in the Air Raid Instructions booklet that was given to you by your Air Raid Warden last summer.

Get out this precious booklet, which by the way has been copied by many eastern cities and received many compliments, and learn right now where you live, what zone and sector. The sector boundries are in red. For example if you live at 106th avenue and 106th street, then you are in 9 B—Zone number 9 and sector B. Remember that for the duration.

The Citizens Volunteer Bureau is using the same boundaries.

Don't wait for someone to ask you to help. Be a volunteer; many are needed and if you don't volunteer it will mean a lot of extra work for the zoning chairman.

Zone Leader

Perhaps you could be a zone leader. A zone leader gets sector leaders who in turn will break their sectors down into blocks of not more than 20 houses. These blocks will have leaders and it will be their duty to contact each house in their blocks and give them instructions on the diverse projects, such as salvage.

Salvage is an important item as it is the intention of the War Services Department of Ottawa that the proceeds from salvage pay for local war work such as troop entertainment, and the like.

Fats Are Needed

Many homemakers will be pleased to have the salvage situation explained to them, and will be anxious to know what scrap materials are needed. For instance, household fats are of vital importance in the manufacturing of glycerine which is essential in the manufacture of explosives. These fats must be stored in clean tin cans and kept in readiness for your zone's salvage drive.

Emergency

The block system, instituted by the Volunteer Bureau, would be invaluable in the case of an emergency, such as an air raid. If Edmonton should receive a warning that enemy planes were heading this way, the radio stations would be the first to go out of action so that the enemy couldn't use their radio beams for guidance. It would be necessary to contact every person and this could be done by the Citizens' Volunteer Bureau director notifying the zoning chairman who would contact her zone leaders who would then contact their sector leaders who would contact their block leaders. And it would be the duty of the block leaders to notify all people in their blocks.

Such information could be given out in less than a hour and would be a great help in such an emergency.

In such an emergency the telephone would play an important part, but since it takes such a small amount of electricity to operate it would not interfere with the power even if that would have to be curtailed.

The Northwestern Utilities have been most generous in loaning this new organization office space on their ground floor office on 104 street. You are asked to come in and register for the kind of work you would like to do and the time you can devote to such necessary war work. If you wish to reach the Citizens' Volunteer Bureau by phone, their number is 28876. Someone will be on duty from 10:30 to 4:30 Monday through Friday.

The temporary committee have done a splendid job in getting this organization started. They began their work early in October. But it is up to Mrs. Edmonton herself to make a success of the organization.

Baseball Abandons South Trips

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK.—To ease the strain on the railroads, the baseball industry has decided to abandon spring training in the grand manner this year, and there goes another of those cherished institutions of the U.S.A. That the athletes can work themselves into condition in the north has never been doubted by the older generation of magnates and managers, including Cousin Egbert Barrow, the business manager of the Yankees, who took a Toronto club not south, but to a little resort even farther north, in 1902, and won a pennant. But the southern trip was a lovely experience and fine advertising, and even the customers who remained in the north while the players eased into their toil had a sense that spring could not be long coming once the dispatches started running under such date lines as St. Petersburgh, Sarasota, Bradenton and Tampa.

W. Pegler

In recent years the living standards of the major league teams have been very high, but just after the First World War when the Florida custom was beginning some of the arrangements were catch-as-catch-can. The Brooklyn club's early abode in Florida, when the first of the booms was going, and the hotels were fewer, was an inn in Clearwater above a row of little stores which had only one bath, and that one full of immature alligators and ill-tempered snapping turtles. Mr. Ebbets and Uncle Wilbert Robinson, the manager, had pleasant homes apart, and the athletes were expected to use the showers of the ball yard and to take their meals at the Greasy Spoon on an allowance of about $3 a day.

Always, in such cases there would be thrifty heroes of the sport page who would save a dollar or two and develop indigestion and be nigh onto collapse from malnutrition by the time they started home. Socially, the Brooklyn athletes were uncommonly frisky and the night I checked into their humble abode the first time there was a crash of glass followed by several pistol shots.

Mr. Abe Yeager, the Brooklyn sport editor, was dealing at the time and without looking up from his cards, remarked that our shortstop was plastered again and holding target practice. It seemed that our shortstop had a habit of throwing a gin bottle out of his window and trying to shoot it on the wing.

One spring, John McGraw, who set the high standard of living and travel, took his Giants to Sarasota for the first time and was indignant when the hotel management, which had a low and apprehensive opinion of ball players, shunted them into a rickety annex. Mr. McGraw threatened to take his ball club out of town, and W. O. McGeehan wrote so bitingly of the outrage that the Ku Klux Klan held a torchlight parade for him and a local newspaper ran an editorial addressed to him under the title, keep your damn mouth shut. The Ku Klux and the local editor lost the argument but Sarasota got a lot of publicity which seems not to have hurt the town for it has flourished nicely in the years since, always with one or more clubs on hand in spring to augment the drawing power and publicity value of the winter quarters of the circus.

Now they are going back to such places as Lakewood, N.J., French Lick and West Baden, Ind., Excelsior Springs, Mo., and even to Yale and Tufts and that Hitler has set civilization back about 25 years.

It is a depressing prospect for the baseball writer. No golf, no swimming in the warm blue water, no long lazy days on the trains, no fishing in the gulf. And the worst of it is that the experiment will show that the men can train as well indoors with occasional sessions in the open on balmy days as ever they did down south, thus destroying a beautiful illusion and jeopardizing chances of a return to the old way when the war is over. Is that anybody's idea of a new and better world?

My Day

BY ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON.—Here it is Monday and I am still writing about Saturday! I really did get badly behind. However, there is little to record on Saturday, except that I opened the "Mile of Dimes" by speaking over the radio for a few minutes and putting two pieces of silver on the line for the President and myself.

In the late afternoon I went down to talk to the workers in the United States office of education about my trip to Great Britain. Then, in the evening, I went on a complete tour, at least as complete as three hours could make it, of the recreation centres for service men in the District of Columbia. This was not my own idea, but a request from the committee.

I was very happy to go, since there are so many men in and out of Washington, for it seems to be both a place for recreation and for changing planes and trains to reach other parts of the country.

Yesterday morning I spoke at the annual communion breakfast for the members of the Carroll Club. This club has for many years been a home and a great influence in the lives of thousands of girls who work in New York City. Mrs. Nicholas Brady, whose mother was deeply interested in it, was the moving spirit for many years of this organization.

Last evening I had supper and spoke at International House, and tonight I shall be on my way to Montreal, Canada. Many important groups throughout the province of Quebec are joining together to make this benefit for Russian relief on Tuesday night a great success.

People are always writing me suggestions of one kind and another. I have one from the veterans of foreign wars of Tulsa, Okla., which really may have merit and meet a need in other parts of the country. They tell me that so many wives and children travel to see their husbands and fathers in army camps. They sometimes wait long hours in bus terminals and railroad stations, with no place to put the baby down for a few minutes except on the wooden benches.

The veterans of foreign wars, therefore, have provided cribs and baby baskets to relieve this need, and found that both the mothers and children seem very much happier. I should think that the problem of laundry and keeping mattresses clean might be more difficult than would at first appear.

Possibly, some cover can be arranged, which takes only a few minutes to wash off, and a pad which can be changed for every new baby that occupies the crib might be a safe covering. In any case, this is an idea which various organizations might like to consider if they find the same needs in their town, as seem to have developed in Tulsa.

Power Waste?

Editor, Bulletin: A great deal of publicity has been given of late to the necessity of conservation of power, and also of transportation. And there is little doubt out that the need is great and that most people are doing all in their power to assist in the saving. But the fact still remains that all is not being done, and that power is used too often where it is unnecessary.

I refer to the use of power over two radio stations located in Edmonton over which the same program is broadcast for a full three-hour period of Saturday afternoons. The program referred to is the one which originated in the Grand Opera theatre in New York, and broadcasts a program which can be described in many different ways.

However, we'll leave that to the listeners. But why the same program over two stations in the same community?

War Nature

Editor, Bulletin: Wars have been raging since the earth began. Why? Is there a hidden power? Nature or God? Or are they one?

Through Nature? For Nature controls man. Man will always be evil and good. Man will always be weak and strong, sick and well.

Here's how Nature controls mankind, even if it is to be the most horrible way. If there were no wars, let's say, since the world began let's also say man was good with no evil of any kind, man then would grow into a vast population, so enormous that the universe would be crawling with humanity. To avoid this man must grow old and in time die. Man also dies from certain diseases; then there's man's hatred of man, his greed and dishonesty and violence to man.

All this brings about the destruction of man. But the birthrate would far outrun these deaths. In this era comes one of the worst ways of demolition of humans, and that is war.

Wars are a way of Nature. In the same way to class, let's say, worms: the worms are attacking an orchard, there's nothing to stop them without Nature. Here Nature has found a way to even things, birds destroy the worms, which were destroying the apple, which further still would be against man.

Therefore man also is waging a war in his own way against Nature, which he must, and yet Nature in turn aids him to destroy.

"Alaskan"

Editor, Bulletin: Re Alaskan Highway, which seems still to interest many of us. Why "Alaskan" rather than "Alaska"? First, to the ear it is more musical, possibly because it is correct English, while the other is incorrect.

One noun is not modified by another noun, but by an adjective. Highway is a noun, Alaska is a noun, and Alaskan the corresponding adjective.

In speaking of a highway to or across any of the divisions of this continent, we would not say, "the Canada Highway, the America or Mexico Highway", but the Canadian, American or Mexican Highway as the case may be.

The fact that in sounding Alaskan, you sound the first syllable of Canada, is not a reason, but a happy coincidence.

I will endeavour to bear up under it if "Alaska" is chosen, but I much prefer Alaskan for the reason given. However let us all "can" Alcan.

Bank Shackles

Editor, Bulletin: In spite of all our talk of being a democratic people of being a free people and never will be slaves and so on, we are only fooling ourselves. We are not only not free but are being bound tighter and tighter in a bondage of slavery to the chartered banks and the longer we allow the present banking system to continue the harder the shackles will be to break.

We the public or the many pay to the bank shareholders or the few, interest on two billion dollars year after year until they become due and after that—well your guess is as good as mine. Since the declaration of war, the increase of government bonds held by the chartered banks totals $870,143,191. And remember that the more they hold the better position they are in to secure more until finally the public are on only the paying end and the banks the receiving end.

In addition to the above, current loans have increased by 150 millions of dollars, making their total increase in loans and investments in government bonds by our chartered banks since the war began approximately one billion dollars. And yet mark this there has been no increase in their subscribed and paid up capital which in 1939 was and still is 145 million dollars, and as half of that is real estate assets it leaves them an actual working capital of $72,500,000 to loan 150 million dollars and buy $870,143,191 worth of bonds. Mystery of mysteries how can it be done?

Well it is hardly such a mystery. When the chartered banks purchase government bonds they enter bookkeeping entries alleged to be deposits in a system under which the chartered banks can buy with Bank of Canada cash ten times as many bonds as the Bank of Canada can buy with its own money.

Talk about funny money. Of course the debt represented in the bonds is debt of the people of Canada to the few bank shareholders and they reap the profits. Again the banks are enabled to expand their holdings to ten times the amount by loans. No wonder the banks warn the people against inflation, they don't want their monopoly infringed upon.

Debasement?

Editor, Bulletin: In Mr. Aberhart's letter published in your issue of December 29th he accuses financiers of "black magic," laughs at the threat of inflation and then offers the people his own form of magic. His proposals boil down to a suggestion that money (he calls it purchasing power) should be printed whenever Mr. Aberhart waves his wand. He claims that merely by waving his magic wand and printing money he can create an easy short cut to wealth, security, joy and strength for all.

What he suggests is nothing less than debasement of the currency. History is replete with the ruinous effects of debased currencies. The Hitler-conquered countries of Europe and the Japanese dominated countries of the Pacific can tell Premier Aberhart a lot about that.

The premier refers to the fact that there is plenty of purchasing power now. The reason for this is that prorduction has increased enormously. This increase in purchasing power followed the expansion in production. Mr. Aberhart wants to start at the other end first, that is increase the supply of money irrespective of production, which is a vastly different method.

Premier Aberhart mentions the present subsidies on tea, coffee and milk, but omits to point out that these subsidies have to be paid by taxes raised from the citizens of Canada, that these taxes represent part of the productive effort of these citizens and it is only because of this productive effort that they have the money and are able to pay taxes.

Further, Premier Aberhart constantly seems to overlook the fact that the people of Canada, through the Dominion government, the department of finance and the Bank of Canada, have complete control of currency and credit. The amount of currency and credit can be increased or decreased as the government desires. Moreover no business operates under closer control and supervision than does banking. Banks do not run the government. Rather the government, through the Bank of Canada, in a very real sense controls the operation of the banks.

Restaurant Congestion

Editor, Bulletin: Today our restaurants are taxed to capacity, particularly at the noon lunch hour. It does not seem possible that more equipment and labor can be used to expand facilities, but it is possible that a very few simple suggestions, would assist greatly in using the facilities we already have to greater advantage.

For instance, if those employers who have changed working hours in order to help the transportation problem, could also move the lunch hour, from that which is most congested, it might help.

Restaurants could supply ample copies of the menu, the customers could select their meals as soon as seated.

Another little matter which could help speed service, is that when the main part of the meal is finished, and your are just waiting for your desert, you could take those several small dishes, cutlery, cup and saucer, etc., and put them all neatly together on the large plate.

You will notice, generally speaking, that at present, the collection of dishes occupies a considerable portion of the waitresses' time. Then after consuming your meal, make room for someone else. It is pleasant to read or converse, but it is also nice for the other person to eat.

Also when approached by the waitress, have your order ready.

Be courteous, as you expect the waitress to be.

Alaska Highway

Editor, Bulletin: I want to get this off my chest and then if I die without the highway to Alaska being properly named it won't be my fault.

Alcan. What a terrible name to give an important highway. Our people must be lacking very, very much in imagination and even in the inclination to pay tribute where tribute is due, if they cannot think of a better name than Alcan. Surely we all can "can" a name of that kind.

Might I humbly suggest, and ask your support, to have this highway called the King-Roosevelt Highway?

Don't you think it would be suitable? It would commemorate the names of the men who were at the heads of the two governments when the road was built.

I put the name of King first because it is in alphabetical order. Second, the name in that way sounds more euphonius. Third, most of the road is built in this country.

Thanks Due

Editor, Bulletin: Of course it would happen on the coldest day yet this winter, but I think the best thanks of this community are due to our gas company for the excellent means which they adopted to minimise the inconvenience to their customers today when the interruption occurred.

The precautions taken, and the means adopted to keep consumers advised in this matter were absolutely perfect, and the rapidity with which matters were adjusted were really wonderful, so let us give credit where every credit is due and take off our hats to our gas company.

TODAY'S MESSAGE

By REV. MURDOCH MacKINNON, M.A., D.D.
Robertson United Church, Edmonton.

"Something Forever New"

CHRISTIANITY is not a new patch on an old garment, it is not a patch at all but an entirely new outfit. It is not new wine in old bottles but an essentially new life finding for itself a medium of expression adequate to its need. It means a hopeful prospect for man as the heir of a kingdom, a new attitude toward God as the redeeming and restoring Friend of the sinner and a new conception of the world as an arena within which the divine creative activity has never been suspended.

Scientists like Ptolmey had taught that the earth was the centre of the universe and that suns and stars conformed their movements to it. But Copernicus made short shrift of this hypothesis and establish the fact that the sun is the centre and that our earth and other planets relate their movements to him. This revolutionary discovery was mild as mother's milk compared to the uniquely radical doctrine upon which Paul bases his exclamation: If any man be in Christ, behold a new creation! When the glory of the revelation of the Son of God shines upon us the world with all that's in it takes on a new aspect. The self-centred life has become Christ-centred.

This change of centre on man's part involves an enlarged sphere of freedom, it means the opening up of a widened field of service and becomes the sign and token of a new spiritual climate. Bacon's Vita Nuova serves but to suggest and hint at the unscaled heights and unfathomed depths of this more abundant life. It implies a break with the self-regarding activities and indulgences of the past: it involves a living faith in the out-flowing love of the Eternal; it confirms the consciousness of forgiveness as the free gift of God and sustains the assurance of divine sonship in the power and fellowship of Jesus Christ.

This radical change has made necessary a complete break with classical philosophy. Plato has his undisputed place but a lad of twelve years nurtured in a Christian atmosphere has a sounder philosophy of life than he. It has called for the re-writing of human history, it has made possible a new attitude toward Art, Literature and Science. Diligent inquiry into the heights of the great world without and the reverent contemplation of the depths of the still greater world within has opened out before us an entirely new 'universe that feels and knows.'

We are in danger of becoming discouraged because our life is so unfinished and because of the distance we still have to go. But nothing less than an ever-ascending ideal is worthy of man's devotion, and we have cause to rejoice that the objective is so far beyond us that it constitutes a challenge to our ever-aspiring souls; that the past with its partial failures and imperfect achievements has not in it the power to restrain us in our forward reach; that the God who made us is still engaged in His beneficently creative activity; that He who began a good work in us will neither retire nor retreat from His own self-appointed and infinitely gracious task, but will go on completing it until the day of Jesus Christ.

Serious "Hopper" Menace Predicted

LETHBRIDGE, Jan. 23—(CP)—R. M. White, Dominion government entomologist here in charge of grasshopper research for Alberta, predicts that more than 1,000,000 acres of some of the finest wheatlands in the province are threatened with severe grasshopper infestation this year.

In an interview here Mr. White said that while the outlook is much the same as last year, infestation may be considerably worse in fields where grasshoppers congregated last year on green summerfallow strips adjacent to crops.

"Wherever grasshoppers congregated on summerfallow or in the margins of fields, farmers can look for trouble, especially if the spring is dry," he said.

The entomologist urged farmers to examine their fields closely and plan early control methods where they discover many eggs. Early spring surface cultivation is one of the best methods of battling the grasshopper menace.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Jan. 23—(AP)—Reports from Austrian newspapers said yesterday that 18 women have been executed by the German Gestapo since Jan. 1, bringing to 88 the known executions in Austria in the last 2½ months. The majority were executed on charges of high treason.

Yukon Woman Routs Wolf With Broom

SELKIRK, Y.T., Jan. 23.—(CP)—The glossy six-foot-long pelt of a black wolf hangs in the home of Mrs. G. I. Cameron today, as a grim reminder to the northland housewife of her attack on the snarling wild animal while armed only with a broom.

Mrs. Cameron, wife of a Royal Canadian Mounted Police corporal, was alone a few days ago at her home in this lonely little outpost, 100 miles north of Whitehorse. She saw the big animal sulking in her backyard but thought it was a stray Malemute dog.

When she saw it crawl into one of the dog kennels behind the house Mrs. Cameron picked up a broom and went out to chase the intruder away. She was banging at the kennel and poking the broom into the small opening when two Indians came along.

Upon hearing human voices, the animal growled viciously and broke out of the kennel past Mrs. Cameron.

Hurrying into the house she grabbed a rifle and handed it to the Indians who managed to shoot the wolf a short distance away.

THE BANK OF TORONTO

Bank has Provided Fullest Credit Facilities for War Production

The 87th Annual General Meeting of the Shareholders was held at the Head Office in Toronto on Wednesday, January 20th, when the President, F. H. Marsh, and the General Manager, B. S. Vanstone, addressed the shareholders.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

Gentlemen:

The statement and report presented for your consideration discloses a strong and soundly liquid position.

The General Manager has commented in detail on the statement and operations of the year. The fact that total assets show a substantial gain and are today 53% greater than they were five years ago indicates continuous expansion of the Bank's business which you will agree, I am sure, is gratifying.

The circumstances under which we meet today are happier than were those of a year ago. At that time, Japan had just embarked upon her career of conquest while the European axis was entrenched deep in Russia. Britain was grimly holding on while the United States was organizing a programme of industrial and military expansion designed to turn the tide ultimately in favor of the united nations.

We now vividly realize the weight of the powers against which we have to contend, and the severity of the struggle which still lies before us. Nevertheless, the events of 1942 strengthen the belief that the final victory will be on our side. Indeed the year appears to have brought the real turning point in the war. Its earlier reverses, which were serious enough, have been offset by some successes, the most notable of which were the effective fight waged by the Russians and the accession of nearly all of North Africa. The closing weeks of the year saw the axis not merely checkmated but actually on the defensive at most points. The united nations have made net gains in the balance of power in the air, on the sea, and on land.

Behind the fighting fronts is a vast industrial machine which is well integrated and attuned to the war, and which is distributed throughout Great Britain, the United States, Russia, Canada and other allied countries. Civilian life is regimented for war purposes, but without actual hardship as yet in Canada. The closely related and difficult problem of war finance is being capably met.

War is the Main Issue

Under these conditions the customary type of survey dealing with production trends, capital development and the other complexities of normal life is hardly possibly. The individual is no longer the arbiter of his own life, since at least one-half of our entire output is channelled into those products and services which are needed for the war. Even in respect to the remainder there is such a degree of regulation that he has little choice as to how he shall spend his money.

Through the use of nearly all plant facilities and the employment of all available workers we have reached a new gross in the national production, now estimated at the rate of about eight billion dollars per annum. On the whole we can view with pride the industrial achievement which is being brought to bear on the war front and which is also decently maintaining our civilian life.

Whether we can maintain such a rate of production after the war is another matter. In normal times there is no insatiable buyer. Instead, it is necessary for the seller to meet the buyer on terms satisfactory to each. The yardsticks of demand, price and cost must again come into play. But, having in mind the already obvious shortages of goods, the reconstruction needs and the new inventions or processes that are being developed during the war, we at least can anticipate that our economic life will be on a broader scale than formerly.

Wide Distribution of Employment and Income

Possibly the most striking feature of our war economy is the wide distribution of activity and purchasing power. There has been a process of levelling up through universal employment at liberal wages, while at the same time there has been a levelling down through regulation and taxation. This no doubt was inevitable. The principle of trying to get through the war, without either hardship on the one hand or profiteering on the other, is eminently just.

Yet we are already witnessing some limitations to this levelling process. Instances of slackening effort are occasionally met in every phase of production—in corporation policy and in the ranks of the white collar and professional workers as well as those at the factory bench. Nearly every producer sees that beyond a certain point taxation takes a rapidly increasing toll of his reward, leaving him a return which diminishes with each successive unit of effort and risk. For the average worker the percentages are substantial. For those in high income brackets the net gain becomes almost negligible. In the business which is subject to excess profits taxation, net gain is near the vanishing point, qualified by the credit of a small proportion which is to be refundable after the war.

Fortunately, the spirit of patriotic endeavour prevails. Sacrifices which come near to confiscation are being tolerated because it is recognized that all must bear a heavy burden, and that no economic policy in such an emergency can be perfect in respect to assessment of the costs.

Incentives Needed for Progress

While we are doing our utmost under these circumstances, we should at the same time take note of the lessons because of their bearing on our future. Canada is a land of opportunity, but its development depends upon adequate rewards and attractions to both labor and capital. The patriotic fervour of the war will not always be with us. The principle of taxation in accordance with ability to pay will undoubtedly stay. But any national policy which aspires to build up the country or even maintain it at its present level, must include dependable and worth-while incentives for those who are willing to work and to save beyond the average.

In these days of constant searching for post-war charters, platforms for political parties both old and new, and plans for corporate and individual policy, this point deserves more attention than appears to have been given it. The effort to better our condition is the mainspring of progress both individual and corporate, but it does not follow that we must break entirely from the past. Insofar as we do start afresh, we must see that the essential factors for successful existence, prosperity and progress are included in our scheme of life.

Post-war Opportunities are in Sight

That there will be both needs and opportunities after the war is evident to the casual eye. Whole nations are already starving for the food which Canada can produce. The wheat surplus, to which we have referred in recent years as a valuable though temporarily embarrassing asset, can disappear like magic when international trade is resumed. Large quantities of forest and mineral products will be needed to restore shattered Europe.

Apart from wheat, we will probably face these opportunities with shelves bare of merchandise. The situation will have to be remedied as quickly as possible, for even at the best of times mankind has little enough between itself and starvation. In this promising future Canada should have an important share, provided that her efficiency is not impaired by too many governmental controls or by an excess of ultra-radical ideas.

Likewise, we must avoid entanglements which disturb public confidence. As an example I may refer specifically to the matter of income tax obligations on account of past periods. Increasingly large numbers of citizens of all classes are voicing concern over the difficulties and in many cases the hardships arising from the present arrangement under which the taxes on individual incomes are collected long months after the income on which they apply has been received and disbursed. To have such obligations fall due in the time of unsettlement after the war, when the incomes of many people will be greatly reduced or entirely lacking, would be still more serious. The Ruml plan which has been receiving so much publicity, or some alternative suited to our Canadian conditions, deserves the closest attention on the part of our tax authorities.

Canada's Future Promising

May I conclude by expressing the utmost confidence in the future of Canada in relation to these prospective needs and opportunities, and in her ability to play an increasing part in the world's industry and commerce. Indeed our prospects may fairly be appraised as second to none. We are possibly far enough from the war to escape direct material damage, but we cannot escape the irreparable loss of many of our finest young men, the nation's most valuable asset.

While the winning of the war must continue to be the predominant thought in our mind, the real test for our democratic way of life will undoubtedly present itself when the war is over and we have achieved victory. It is the part of wisdom, in fact, it is a duty to the gallant men and women who are fighting for us that post-war plans be formulated now, having as their aim full employment, higher living standards and greater economic security for all. This challenges the best thought of our business and political leaders. It is encouraging to know that our Dominion Government has a strong committee of reconstruction actively working on post-war problems, one of the most important of which is providing profitable employment for all who are capable of working.

Due to the pressing demand for increasing quantities of war supplies during the past three years, Canada's industrial capacity has been greatly expanded not only by enlargement of existing plants and the erection of new ones, but by introduction of improved machinery and better methods of operation as well. These should be important factors in enabling us to sell our products at competitive prices in both foreign and domestic markets.

With her vast and only partially developed natural resources of power, agriculture, timber, gold, radium, nickel, iron and other base metals, Canada will occupy a unique and enviable place in the post-war economy. The responsibility for the development and distribution of these resources in a way that will allow all classes of Canadians to benefit equitably is great and must depend on capable, honestly-directed industrial enterprise working in harmony with efficient, loyal, well-paid labour, supplemented where necessary by Government assistance and wisely administered control.

The unselfish co-operation of management, labour and Government is essential to maximum success.

GENERAL MANAGER'S ADDRESS

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen:

The Eighty-Seventh annual statement submitted today covering the Bank's operations for the year ending November 30th, 1942, will, I believe, be accepted by you as satisfactory.

Profits

Our earnings, after making provision for all known or anticipated contingencies and the usual contribution of $150,000. to Officers' Pension Fund, were slightly higher than those of the previous year but an increase in Federal Taxes of $195,683. resulted in a reduction of $156,826. in net profits which amounted to $1,214,729. After writing off $250,000. against Bank Premises and paying regular dividends amounting to $600,000., there remained a balance of $364,729. to be added to Profit and Loss Account which now stands at $860,530., the sum of $2,000,000. having been transferred to Rest Account which now totals $12,000,000.

The increased rate of federal taxation in 1942 was applicable to only 5 months of our fiscal year and our taxes will undoubtedly be considerably higher in 1943, but we anticipate being able to meet them without requiring to reduce our usual dividend of 10% which is equal to 3.18% on shareholders' funds consisting of Capital, Rest, and Profit and Loss Accounts.

Total Assets

Total Assets, $215,636,066., are the highest in the history of the Bank and represent an increase of $33,410,064. for the year, this being largely due to greater industrial activity and wartime financing.

Quick Assets consisting of cash or assets readily convertible into cash total $144,632,553.—equal to 73.55% of our liabilities to the public. Of this amount $31,318,016. is represented by Cash, Bank Balances (including our deposit with the Bank of Canada) and notes and cheques of other Banks.

This is a high percentage of readily available assets and indicates the strong liquid position of the Bank.

Securities

Our investment in securities totals $111,996,512.—an increase of $36,356,040.

Of this amount 95% consists of Dominion and Provincial issues. Those maturing within two years represent $63,113,719. of the total which is $30,568,634. higher than a year ago. Those of a slightly longer date amount to $43,413,570., an increase of $6,529,773.

Municipal Securities at $1,905,853. are lower by $728,356. and other bonds, debentures and stocks at $3,563,368. also show a small decrease.

Call Loans

Call Loans, $1,318,025., are higher by $171,250. There is still little demand for this type of loan.

Current Loans

Current Loans, $63,009,888., show an increase of $2,749,255. A substantial amount consists of loans to various industries engaged in the production of war material. We are also extending assistance to purchasers of Victory Loan bonds and our grain loans continue at a high figure.

While our loans have shown consistent increases during the past few years, the percentage of loans to deposits is less than we would like and we welcome opportunities to extend credit facilities for the development of business both large and small.

Municipal Loans

Loans to Municipalities total $3,001,444.—a decrease of $436,726.

The discontinuance of capital expenditures and the continued improvement in tax payments have enabled a large number of Municipalities not only to reduce their funded indebtedness but also to decrease their borrowings from the Banks for current expenditure.

Bank Premises

These now stand on our books at $2,969,822.—a decrease of $209,990., the appropriation of $250,000. accounting for this reduction.

During the year the erection of a new permanent office at Gaspe, Quebec, was completed and our office space enlarged at several other points, this being necessary to take care of increased volume.

Notes in Circulation

These amount to $2,242,719., a reduction of $738,250. Under the provisions of the Bank Act our circulation is now being reduced at the rate of 10% of our paid-up capital each year and for the year 1943 the maximum amount permitted is $2,700,000.

Deposits

Interest-bearing deposits $93,234,911.—an increase of $3,444,574.

In view of the heavy withdrawals by the public for investment in the various Victory Loan issues, this may be regarded as a very satisfactory showing.

The Dominion Government deposit with us amounted to $33,610,410. — an increase of $24,409,201. This item in time of war is subject to wide fluctuation.

Deposits of Provincial Governments $1,923,330.—an increase of $107,393.

There is also one very valuable asset, an intangible one, which you will not find in the balance sheet. I refer to the ever-increasing goodwill accumulated during the eighty-seven years of the Bank's existence which constitutes an important factor in the steady growth of our business.

Branches

In an effort to conserve manpower Canadian banks have closed 163 branches during the twelve months ending November 30th, 1942, and in conformity with this policy we have discontinued the following offices:—

Avenue Rd. & St. Germain Ave., Toronto
Bloor St. & Howland Ave., Toronto
College St. & Dovercourt Rd., Toronto
Lansdowne
London North
London West
Milton
Mount Dennis

On November 30th we had 167 branches.

Inspections

All branches of the Bank have been inspected by our Inspection officers during the year and the usual audit of cash, securities and loans at Head Office and the principal branches in Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg and Vancouver has been made by the shareholders' auditors.

Staff

It affords me great pleasure to express our sincere appreciation of the splendid co-operation and consistently efficient work of our Staff during the past year. The senior officers have had greatly added responsibilities, not only because of the increased volume of business but also in the training and supervision of the younger members of the Staff, most of whom are girls who have been with us only a comparatively short time. The junior members of the Staff deserve special commendation for the splendid spirit in which they have approached their tasks and the competent manner in which they have discharged their duties.

At the present time we have a staff of 1,457, of whom 60% are women as compared with 20% at the commencement of the war.

Over 400 members of the staff are now serving in the Armed Forces. All are on leave of absence for the duration of the war and are assured of a position upon their return. Of these splendid young men, I deeply regret to report that six have made the supreme sacrifice and three are listed as missing.

In conclusion let me say that your Bank has assisted the war effort in every possible way. It has been our policy throughout to provide fullest credit facilities for those of our clients who are engaged in the production of war supplies, to do our share in Government financing and to participate in the distribution to the public of Victory Bonds, War Savings Certificates and Stamps as well as to perform numerous other services relating to wartime activities.

The success of the recent Third Victory Loan, when cash subscriptions reached the very large figure of $991,536,500. and over 2,000,000 subscribers participated, is praiseworthy. Such an immense sum could only have been raised as the result of the patriotic fervour of the Canadian people and a very efficient organization.

There will undoubtedly be further issues by the Government during the present year and it is absolutely essential that these be given full support by every one. This will necessitate continued self-denial and sacrifice. We are confident that each Canadian citizen will do his part.

Major And Minor Notes—By John Oliver

ACTIVITIES of the Edmonton Civic Opera Society will be transferred from the Empire theatre, which on Feb. 2 passes into the hands of a Kansas bridge company "for the duration," to the Strand theatre, and at the latter house, the society, in the middle of April, on dates to be set later, will present its spring offering. The work selected for production is Rudolf Friml's "The Firefly." It had been expected that Oscar Straus' "A Waltz Dream" would get the call, and actually it was the one favored. However, on an examination of the libretto, it was found that the lines had been overhauled, and alterations had been made in the original, as presented in London and New York, so it was decided to give "The Firefly." In announcing selection of the production, and the fact that the Strand theatre had been made available therefor, Mrs. James B. Carmichael, general musical director of the Civic Opera Group, expressed warm thanks to Alex. Entwisle, managing director of Entwisle Theatre and to Famous Players for their courtesy in making possible the production, by voiding the regular picture shows for the occasion. However, to conform to the dates on which pictures change it is likely "The Firefly" will be played Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday instead of the last three days of the week.

JOHN OLIVER

Material for "The Firefly" is on the way, and as soon as it arrives, rehearsals will be called, and casting commenced. In selecting this work the Civic Opera management favors an outstandingly successful show, the music of which has been played and sung the world over. "The Firefly" is a comic opera in three acts. The book and lyrics are by Otto Harbach, and the music by Rudolf Friml. It was first produced by Arthur Hammerstein at the Empire theatre, Syracuse, New York, Oct. 14, 1912, for a tryout, and then at the Lyric theatre, New York, Dec. 2, 1912. It remained at the latter house for a long period. Emma Trentini was in the leading role of Nina. Others in the cast included Audrey Maple, Roy Atwell, Vera de Rosa, Craig Campbell and others.

Laid in the present day, the action shifts from New York to Bermuda. Act I takes place on the Recreation Pier at the foot of 23rd street, New York. Act II is on the Van Dare estate, Bermuda, and Act III in the Van Dare home in New York. The story revolves around Nina, a street singer who, disguised as a boy, goes as a stowaway to Bermuda, on the same boat as a group of society folk.

Nina is accused of theft, and of being a notorious pickpocket. She is finally cleared, her identity is revealed, and she wins her hero. In the score are many widely-sung and highly-popular songs. There is the waltz song, "Sympathy," and other popular numbers are "When a Maid Comes Knocking," "Love is Like a Firefly," "Giannina Mia," "In Sapphire Seas," "Tommy Atkins," "A Woman's Smile," "We're Going to Make a Man of You," "Beautiful Ship from Toyland," "I Love Pretty Lips," "The Dawn of Love," "Like A Dream it Seems," and others.

Details of next season will remain in abeyance until after Fred M. Gee, Winnipeg impressario, visits New York in the near future and makes arrangements for his artists. Some time ago the Women's Musical Club executive decided to expand the series from five, as it has been until now, to six. Whether the change of auditorium will make any difference on this point is not known, and along with other details, will await working-out.

Active Season

Mrs. J. B. Carmichael, general musical director of the Edmonton Civic Opera Society. She has started work on the group's spring production, "The Firefly," and in addition is preparing "Mozart Miniatures" for presentation at the Women's Musical Club Feb. 6, and is rehearsing the Scona High School Orchestra for an appearance at the Canadian Legion Hut next Wednesday.

The fifth and final scheduled concert of this season's Celebrity Series will be that by Marian Anderson, contralto, on Monday, Feb. 1. This will be her first appearance here. Few singers of the present day have received the widespread attention and acclaim that has been her lot. Howard Taubman of the music department, The New York Times, wrote on April 6, 1941: "A tall, slim, serious girl in her 'teens named Marian Anderson was the favorite singer of the South Philadelphia Negro neighborhood where she lived a score of years ago. There was a welling fund of music in her, and she had to sing. Wherever and whenever they asked her, she sang. Today she is America's greatest contralto. She appears in more recitals each season than any other major artist. She has sung throughout Europe and the United States, and she has won the unstinted admiration of the average citizen, of eminent musicians like Jean Sibelius and Arturo Toscanini, of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and of the King and Queen of England, for whom she sang at the White House almost two years ago."

On Friday, Jan. 29, music lovers will be given an opportunity of renewing acquaintanceship with Jan and Mischel Cherniavsky, Vancouver musicians, and outstanding artists of the piano and 'cello, respectively. They will give a concert at the Empire theatre under the auspices of the Northern Alberta War Services Entertainment Board, the proceeds of which will be applied toward entertaining the service men in the northern section of this province. Both have appeared here before, but as a considerable number of years has elapsed since their last visit, virtually a new generation of concert-goers has appeared since that time.

These talented artists have circled the globe eight times, travelling more than 2,000,000 miles in so doing. Their tours have taken them to every large centre on the five continents. In some cities they appeared in as many as 10 successive concerts. Jan, the pianist, studied with Mme. Goldweiser, pupil of Raoul Pugno, Mme. Essipoff and Leschetizsky, teacher of Paderewski, Mischel, the 'cellist, studied with the famous 'cellist and composer, David Popper, and Professor Walenn.

The orchestra at Scona High school, which made its debut during the recent performance at the school, of "The Ghost Train," made a genuine hit. Mrs. J. B. Carmichael, who organized and trained it, reports that since the debut there has been increased interest shown by young players. She stated that parents of pupils have contacted her with a view to having their children join, while teachers and students likewise have contacted her. The public appearance not only launched a successful artistic career, but similarly fired others with the ambition of joining, and benefiting from the cultural opportunities offered.

Now that public performances have been given, it is to be hoped that parents, teachers, students and all others to whom the future of orchestral playing in this city is of interest, will take an active interest, and encourage membership, attendance at rehearsals, and diligent practice, as on such groups will depend the future of ensemble playing here. The orchestra will make its second public appearance at the Canadian Legion Hut next Wednesday, playing for soldiers of the Edmonton Garrison.

So-Ed Series Are Success Despite Cold

Despite inclement weather second session of Edmonton first So-Ed series, held Friday night at the Y.M.C.A., was declared a success by John C. Denison, chairman of the committee sponsoring the community service project. About 150 of the 200 registrants for the course were in attendance.

Thorssen, B.Sc., lecturer in chemical engineering, University of Alberta were speakers in the lecture-discussion periods.

Greater War Effort Goal Of Ukrainians

In spite of great achievements of the Ukrainian Canadian Association in the national war effort during the past year the convention must find ways and means of improving their efforts to help hasten an Allied victory, John Klybanoski, president of the Alberta branch of the Ukrainian Canadian Association, told 150 delegates at the first annual provincial convention in the Imperial hall Saturday.

Mr. Klybanoski's presidential address was the first item of a two-day convention program in which delegates from many parts of the province are participating. A public concert in the Memorial hall Sunday night will close the convention.

Taking as their convention theme the slogan, "Organize and Work for Victory" the delegates set out immediately to devise way and means by which their province-wide organization can help towards a fuller war effort.

MANY IN FORCES

Mr. Klybanoski summarized the organization's efforts by stating that hundreds of sons of association members and many members themselves are now in the armed services. Many more are working in war industries and large numbers are on farms producing food.

In the last victory loan campaign $500,000 worth of bonds were sold through the association's efforts and in the past year the association raised $140,000 for medical aid to the Soviet Union, he said.

At the present time the association is participating actively in the Canadian Aid to Russia Fund, he added.

These are great achievements but they are not enough, he declared.

INCREASE EFFORTS

"We must increase our efforts. We must produce more. We must increase our armed forces. How this can be done is the main task before this convention," the president stated.

Opening event of the convention was a dramatic presentation held before a capacity audience at the Imperial hall Friday night, when a group of 25 artists under the direction of Mike Yakimchuk presented a play entitled, "Harry, Don't Visit the Night Parties".

Mayor John Fry delivered an address of welcome to the hundreds of out-of-town visitors present at the concert. He stated that Canada needs the culture brought here by people from European countries and stated that at the present time the gigantic world struggle is being fought in the common cause of preserving the varied cultures that are rapidly becoming part of Canada's heritage.

William Malina, secretary of the Edmonton branch of the Ukrainian Canadian Association, introduced Mayor Fry as well as the following: Nicholas Hrynchyshyn, managing editor of the "Ukrainian Word", Winnipeg, and member of the national council of the association; Mr. Klybanoski; Nick Alexievitch, recording secretary of the provincial branch of the association; Harry Zymak, member at large of the provincial body; and Meiro Semeniuk, provincial organizer.

MEMBERS OF CAST

Leading roles in the play were taken by Annie Myslak as "Marushia" and Dimitri Nikiforuk as "Harry". Others participating were: Walter Mokrzycki, T. Choban, Christine Kuziw, Mike Yakymchuk, Walter Symotiuk, Jean Lesyshyn, John Repica, Mrs. A. Kuziw, Mrs. P. Polney, P. Polney, Sam Mokry, Alga Nahornick, D. Metruk and 10 others who took minor roles as young men and women. Michael Budnick, Edna Tarabas and Mrs. Jennie Wattam provided musical accompaniment for the drama.

Kisses Girl and Loses Gas Ration

MATAWAN, N.J., Jan. 23—(AP)—Police Chief Edwin C. Sloat watched the youthful driver stop his automobile, put his arms around a girl companion and kiss her. The chief decided if that wasn't pleasure driving he'd never seen any, so he lifted the "C" gasoline ration book held by the driver, Walter Cohen, 19.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

IT MUST have come as very much of a shock to most of those listening to R. James Speers' address at the annual dinner of the Edmonton District Thoroughbred Society to learn the terrible disadvantage the United Nations were under in so far as horse power was concerned when the war began.

Most of us not actually in the know are probably inclined to the opinion that the present war is almost entirely a mechanized and motorized proposition but the facts would not appear to bear this out.

Mr. Speer was basing his figures on the information compiled by United States military authorities in 1941, chief amongst whom was Major General John Kerr, chief of cavalry in the U.S. Army and the information is nothing short of startling.

U.S. TOTAL 37,000

ACCORDING to the report, Germany's armed forces were using 50,000 for cavalry and 910,000 for draft and pack purposes in 1941. Russia had more than one million, of which 200,000 were in cavalry and 800,000 used for draft and pack. Japan had available 50,000 and 325,000 for the respective categories.

On their own admission, Germany used 200,000 in their Polish campaign alone and this large number made possible the pace of their attacking armies, particularly when bad weather interfered in the later operations.

Sad to relate, the United States at the same time had a total of only 37,000 and of this number 25,000 were in the cavalry and the remainder or 12,000 for pack and draft purposes.

BANGTAILS CONTRIBUTE

OF particular interest also to those members of the society at the meeting must have been the quoted opinion of Col. E. R. Hardy, chief of the U.S. army remount service that "we like at least half-thoroughbred in our draft horses and riding horses and we like them with as much thoroughbred blood as they can carry with the necessary substance and temperament . . . we now want half thoroughbred horses for our artillery."

Mr. Speers, incidentally placed at approximately 2,500 the number of Canadian bred horses engaged in racing. The total purses offered last year were slightly over a million dollars, giving each horse an earning power of less than $500 each.

The provincial tax of 5 per cent, the same levy by the Federal government along with the 20 per cent tax on gates, resulted in those 2,500 horses indirectly contributing to the coffers $2,750,000 in 1941 and $2,225,000 last year.

To Go 10 Rounds

Kenny Lindsay Reports: Will Fight Hugh Sloane

AC.2 Kenny Lindsay of Vancouver, Canadian bantamweight champion now a member of the R.C.A.F. reported at No. 3 "M" Depot here on Friday and as a result the fight card scheduled for the Arena next Saturday, Jan. 30, to assist the Army and Air Force benevolent funds is now more attractive than ever.

Lindsay, anxious to do what he can to help out has agreed to fight 10 rounds and AC.2 Hugh Sloane has been named as his opponent.

That means those attending will have the privilege of witnessing two champions in action for Sgt. Dave Castilloux, holder of the dominion welterweight title is battling Pte. Al Lust of Calgary that same night for the services championship.

Sloane also fought out of Vancouver prior to joining the R.C.A.F. and is well thought of in Pacific coast mitt circles. He will also have a slight weight edge over Lindsay.

In addition of course to the two 10-round bouts several preliminaries are included, making the greatest fight card ever seen here, or anywhere else in Canada for that matter.

Castilloux has been working out daily at the "M" Depot for nearly two weeks now and is reported to be making good progress in training for his go with the heavier Al Lust, whom he outpointed in Montreal last November.

Flt. Lt. W. C. Goudie, secretary of the committee stated last night that there was a brisker demand for tickets, one block reservation alone being for 25 Gyro members who are attending in a body.

Finalists in the Grand Challenge

In the top picture shown above are the members of Mrs. A. Christiansen's rink from the Royal Curling Club, winners of the Grand Challenge, premier event in the northern Alberta women's bonspiel. Reading from left to right they are: Mrs. Ken Saunders (lead), Mrs. A. E. Rocque (second), Mrs. F. Harris (third), and Mrs. A. Christiansen (skip). Shown in the lower picture are Mrs. C. R. Cameron's Alberta Ave. Club curlers who lost out in the final, 12-4, on Friday afternoon. Reading from left to right they are: Mrs. G. Wilson (lead), Mrs. G. McMurray (second), Mrs. R. L. Smith (third), and Mrs. C. R. Cameron (skip).

Alberta Ave. Curlers Take Three Events

MRS. A. CHRISTIANSEN'S rink from the Royal Club captured premier honors in the northern Alberta women's curling bonspiel by defeating Mrs. C. Cameron's Alberta Ave. quartette 12-4 in the Grand Challenge final on Friday afternoon. All five remaining finals were played yesterday.

Mrs. S. Walkinshaw and her Alberta Ave. curlers won the Hudson's Bay event from Mrs. F. A. Mercer of the Royal 14-8 and then made the day complete by taking the City (Dentyne) final on the 3 o'clock draw from Mrs. L. S. LeClerc, also of Alberta Ave. by a score of 13-7.

The Jackson cup went to Mrs. E. Garlough, Alberta Ave. Club, who won a close decision over Mrs. Pat Rose, Granite, the final scoreboard figures reading 10-8. Mrs. A. Roggeveen, of Sedgwick took the Sheppard with a 17-9 victory over Mrs. T. I. McLeod of Edson.

While the bonspiel jewelry was fairly well distributed, three out of a possible five trophies went to the Alberta Ave. Ladies Curling Club, viz: Hudson's Bay, Jackson and City (Dentyne). In addition rinks from that club skipped by Mrs. W. Mowbray, Mrs. L. S. LeClerc and Mrs. D. Harper also shared in the prizes. Mrs. C. Cameron of course took second in the Challenge.

One competition went to the Royal, Mrs. Christiansen's rink winning the Challenge, but Mrs. F. A. Mercer, a finalist in the Hudson's Bay also took a fourth in the City.

The Sheppard final was strictly a visitors' final, Mrs. Roggeveen being from Sedgwick and her opponent Mrs. McLeod from Edson. Mrs. C. E. Blakeney who placed fourth in the Challenge is from Sedgewick also.

Mrs. M. A. McCallum defeated Mrs. Blakeney in the Cooper (Visitors) event final on Thursday.

Although the Granite ladies failed to take a trophy, five rinks from that club shared in the jewelry. Mrs. Pat Rose reached the final in the Jackson and Mrs. T. Cottrell, Mrs. O. Brown and Mrs. W. Howson all won third prizes and Mrs. D Durrand took fourth in the Sheppard.

Mrs Cameron counted the first end in the Grand Challenge final, but Mrs. Christiansen evened matters up in the second, only to drop one in arrears in the third. A pair in the fourth gave the Royal rink a single count lead and another was added in the fifth.

The Alberta Ave. skip came back with one in both sixth and seventh to deadlock the score 4-4. Mrs. Christiansen counted singletons however in the seventh and eighth

Robinson, Wilson To Go Into Army After Prize Fight

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The year's prize welterweight bout featuring Ray Robinson and California Jackie Wilson was signed Friday but the United States government has been doing some more important signing, including some of the busiest fighters in the business.

It has signed up both Robinson and Tami Mauriello, who have probably seen more action than any others in their division in the last year.

As a result, Ray's date with Wilson, Feb. 19 in Madison Square Guarden, will be his last before he goes into the Army. Tami, too, will have just one more trip to the post before he starts doing his slugging in Khaki either late in March or early in April.

Promoter Mike announced the infantile paralysis fund will be the beneficiary from the match between the unbeaten Robinson—winner of some 133 fights in a row as an amateur and professional—and Wilson, a sergeant in the army now stationed at Mitchell Field, Long Island. It will be a 10-rounder and will settle, at long last, the argument of many "experts" that California Jackie is the only 147-pounder in the world today with a chance of beating Robinson.

Robinson already has taken the first step toward joining Jackie in the army. He probably will be inducted Feb. 23, four days after his bout with Wilson.

Willie Pep, the New York version of a featherweight champion, has just received his classification papers, and some 2,700 fisticuffers of one sort or another are in the various branches of military service. From here, it would appear that the armed services will wind up with just about all of the young talent developed in the last few years.

Wolfe Rink Drops Out Of Aggregate at Calgary

CALGARY, Jan. 23.—(CP)—Second primary event of the 1943 Calgary bonspiel was decided here Friday when T. H. McIvor of Okotoks, winner of the Grand Aggregate a year ago, defeated Len Haw, Calgary Glencoe Club, 12-11 in the final for the Alberta Pacific Grain Co., competition.

The match highlighted a day of curling that saw F. J. Wolfe, Edmonton entry which was in the running for several events Thursday, fade out of the aggregate race as a result of two successive losses in the Brewery and Gas Company secondary competitions.

The northern curlers, however, stayed in the thick of the fight for the Birks (Visitors) trophy, which does not count in the aggregate, by scoring a pair of wins in the early draws.

Following were included in Friday's results:

Yankees Acquire Etten from Phils

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—(AP)—New York Yankees moved Friday to fill their gap at first base by obtaining big Nick Etten from Philadelphia Phils for an undisclosed amount of cash and two players from their Kansas City farm in the American Association—pitcher Allen Gettel and first baseman Ed Whitney Levy.

Etten, a lefthanded power hitter who batted .311 for the Phils in 1941 but subsided to a .265 pace last season, will take the spot left by Buddy Hassett's entry into military service.

Gettel is a righthanded pitcher who won 12 and lost 11 last year for Kansas City. He had been in the Yankee organization for three or four years.

Levy, who is six feet five inches tall started the season at first base last year for the Yankees, but lost the job to Hassett and was returned to Kansas City, where he batted .305.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Addition of the great George Sisler and three other men to the Brooklyn Dodgers' scouting staff marks an important development in wartime baseball. It formally launches the Dodgers' drive for teen-age sandlot talent to replace players called to service.

This step, announced by Branch Rickey, probably will be followed soon by other major league clubs.

Rickey executed a master stroke when he induced Sisler, commissioner of semi-pro baseball for the past five years, to return to the major leagues where he performed for 15 years with such brilliance that he has been elected to the Hall of Fame and is ranked with Hal Chase and the late Lou Gehrig as one of the three greatest first basemen of all time.

Sisler, who will continue as commissioner of the semi-pro game at least until April 1, has invaluable connections with the sandlots. He will seek talent for the Dodgers among these semi-pro incubators and also will direct several Dodger try-out camps.

WILL SEEK TALENT

"CERTAIN aspects of this job," Rickey said "will be new to George, but I'm confident he—of all men—has the ability to handle it. He should do well with the youngsters at the camps—16 and 17-year-old boys."

Rickey and Sisler have been friends for years. They met when Rickey was a coach at the University of Michigan and Sisler, a freshman, tried to make the Varsity team as a pitcher. In a seven-inning game for the campus championship that year, Sisler fanned 20 men. However, he became famous later as a great hitter and graceful first baseman.

Other scouts added to the Dodger staff were Fresco Thompson, Wid Mathews and Bob Finch, raising the Dodger total to nine principal talent hunters. The club also has more than a dozen "bird dog" scouts working on a commission basis.

RICKEY HAS SOLUTION

RICKEY, father of the farm system in baseball, believes that his new program of intensive scouting in the free-agency or semi-pro field is the solution of the manpower problem raised by the game's losses to the services. This system is based on the possibility of the war's lasting two more years.

Sisler, who will be 50 in March, stepped from the University of Michigan campus to the St. Louis Browns in 1915, following in the footsteps of Rickey who had become business manager of the Browns. Unfortunately Sisler, as a high school ace, had signed with Akron, O. Akron transferred the contract to Columbus, and Pittsburgh bought it. Hence, his preference for Rickey and the Browns after graduation from Michigan precipitated a row that helped change the control of organized baseball.

The late Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pirates, objected strenuously to Sisler's shift to the Browns. But the old National commission—Garry Herrmann and the presidents of the National and American leagues—decided in favor of the Browns. Dreyfuss went after the commission's scalp and kept after it until the commission was overthrown and Judge K. M. Landis was put in charge.

WON PLAYER AWARD

WE mention this embroilment because Sisler's friendship for Rickey was largely responsible for it. But this ruckus had little to do with Sisler's later fame. He played with the Browns from 1915 through the 1927 season and was player-manager of the club in '24, '25 and '26. He received the American League's most valuable player award for the 1922 season during which he batted out the fabulous percentage of .420. He led the batsmen of his circuit that season and in 1920.

Leaving the Browns, he played with Washington, the Red Sox, Rochester and wound up in 1932 with Shreveport-Tyler of the Texas League. He finished with a lifetime batting average of .341 and a fielding mark of .987.

Now George is coming back to the majors to work with the idol of his youth, Rickey. And both these elderly gaffers will unite in putting a definite accent on youth in baseball for the duration.

Cite Need For Advance Plans On Employment

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que, Jan. 23—(CP)—Importance of closely integrated advance planning by governments and private enterprise in co-operation to meet the post-war problems of labor dislocations was stressed yesterday by Principal R. C. Wallace, of Queen's university.

In a speech prepared for delivery at the 25th annual convention of the Canadian Construction Association here, Principal Wallace said when war ends "The labor dislocations will reach large proportions."

It would require "All the initiative of private enterprise, and all the programs which the government can provide, to meet the case," he said. And it would depend, in the final analysis, "on a little here, a little there, multiplied thousands of times, rather than on any mass operations, public or private."

"Governmental organizations, whether federal, provincial, municipal and county, have to be prepared to assist by public works fitted in at the right place. Where and when they should be fitted in, and in what order, it will also be the function of the government to determine," he said.

The necessity of a state housing plan for the lower income group was stressed by William L. Sommerville of Toronto, fellow of the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada, in an address prepared for delivery yesterday at the convention.

Housing of the lower income groups which comprise 60 per cent of Canada's population was not a subject in which private enterprise has any interest, he declared. More than half of the wage-earning population earned $1,000 a year or less, and a large proportion $600 or less. "This means that housing must be made available at rents from $10 per month up to $17. It has therefore been generally recognized as a public or government responsibility."

Canuck Ack-Ack Gunners Helped to Defend London

By DOUGLAS AMARON

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Jan. 23.—(CP)—A Canadian anti-aircraft battery was praised yesterday for its part in the aerial defence of London last Sunday when it tossed four tons of high explosive shells a minute at German bombers.

It is the only Canadian heavy anti-aircraft battery in the London defence area. The unit was praised by the general officer commanding the ack-ack command, Sir Frederick Pile, who messaged: "Keep up the good work, Canada."

Using the heaviest anti-aircraft guns in operation, the Canadians, whose motto is "Come On, Fritz," were near a bombing attack and high explosives fell within blast range of their gunsite, but they suffered nothing worse than slight injuries from flying splinters.

SURE TWO DOWNED

The Canadians were not credited with destruction of enemy planes but they were confident that at least two raiders they engaged did not return to their bases.

The commander of the Canadians, Maj. F. B. Zink of Dartmouth, N.S., was singled out in Sir Frederick's message.

This battery, which last fired its guns "to kill" last July, when it was stationed on the coast, was recruited in Winnipeg and, with the exception of a few men from the Maritimes, most of the gunners are Manitobans. The officers come from many parts of Canada.

700,000 Men in Canada Subject To Compulsion

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Jan. 23—The most important extension of compulsion to civilians since the war started was announced Friday by Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, minister of labor, in disclosing changes in selective service (civilian) regulations.

All men subject to military service have been made subject to compulsory employment. The man power pool affected by this move was estimated by Arthur Macnamara, director of national selective service as between 600,000 and 700,000. It is the net figure of all male Canadians subject to military service and not in uniform, that is, all single men from 19 to 40 and married men from 19 to 25, comprising about 1,300,000 men of whom 600,000 are in military service.

DEPEND ON SHORTAGES

The extent to which compulsory transfers of labor will be made will depend on labor shortages that arise. Mr. Mitchell recalled that under similar circumstances in England only about five per cent of labor transfers were compulsory. In Canada it is admitted, most of the men affected are already engaged in essential work, and would not likely be moved except where an emergency arose requiring transfers.

Mr. Mitchell also confirmed our report that fresh instructions are being issued to mobilization boards to obtain uniform enforcement of the mandatory provision for indefinite postponement from military service of all essential farm workers.

With The Railroaders

William Manson Is Honored by Winnipeg Men

VANCOUVER, Jan. 23—William Manson, newly appointed general superintendent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, B.C. district, mentally returned to Winnipeg Wednesday for a few happy minutes.

The occasion was the presentation of an engraved silver tray, the gift from officers of all car departments in Winnipeg. Unable to give it to him personally, the Winnipeg officers deputized C. A. Cotterell, assistant general manager, Vancouver, to make the presentation here—and Mr. Cotterell handled it very neatly. The occasion was Mr. Cotterell's birthday also.

Every department in Vancouver was represented—just as they would have been in Winnipeg. Mr. Cotterell's speech, by proxy, was in almost the same words that would have been used by the officers who would normally have made the presentation in Winnipeg.

Mr. Manson spoke briefly, saying he had enjoyed his short stay in Winnipeg and giving credit to the co-operation of every department for the fact that the railway has been able to carry on efficiently under such abnormally heavy traffic conditions.

Bruce Burpee, general passenger agent, congratulated Mr. Manson on his promotion and Mr. Cotterell on his birthday and announced that Mr. Manson should be happy because "by having the presentation by proxy he was surrounded by a much better group of fellows than if he had actually been in Winnipeg."

Edmonton Girls Take Part in Toronto Show

A recent picture on the picture page of The Bulletin showed a number of attractive young airwomen in a gymnasium flat on the floor, and arranged in a "clock" pattern. The picture was taken in Toronto and was of a number of young ladies taking the air force physical training course.

Two of the young ladies in the picture are Edmonton girls and one of them is at home on leave right now. She is Corporal Violet Peck of 7010 105A street. The other was Cpl. H. A. Rutherford, also of Edmonton, who is now stationed at Lethbridge.

Corporal Peck enlisted in the R.C.A.F. (W.D.) in March, 1942. She went from Edmonton to Toronto where she spent eight weeks. One month was basic training and the other was spent learning to be a transport driver.

Cpl. Peck was enthusiastic about the training she took in the transport driver course. She drove in the city of Toronto for her "city driving" test and also took trips to Oshawa, Hamilton and other nearby points. In addition to actual driving she learned about fuel pumps, ignition systems and so on. "I'll be able to look after a car of my own after the war," she remarked.

After being posted to Mountainview, Ont., she took an active interest in sports and was selected to take the special P.T. course offered airwomen. This was a six weeks course and was followed by a four-week administration course which earned here her corporal's stripes. She is now stationed at Dafoe, Sask.

Appeal Is Made For Six Radios

If you have a radio for which you have no further use, there is a good use to which it can be put.

Sgt. E. Berg of the Edmonton Regiment, stationed at the Edmonton Garrison, is seeking six radios for use in the tuberculosis ward of the General hospital.

He has had personal reasons for taking an interest in this ward, and has seen the necessity for the patients having some sort of recreation and entertainment. Practically the only way they have of obtaining this is by radio.

So, if you have a radio you can do without, contact Sgt. Berg, either at 22019 or 24373 and he will arrange to pick it up and instal it at the General hospital.

Donald Myler, former Bulletin carrier boy, and now a first class stoker with the Royal Canadian Navy, is back in Edmonton spending a 21-day leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Myler, 8930 77 avenue. Donald, who was born here, got a "hankering" for the sea in March, 1912, and, turning his Bulletin route over to his younger brother, Gilbert, 10 years old, he joined the navy. After a period of training in the city, he was posted to a station, later going on patrol duty. In St. John's Newfoundland at the time of the disastrous hostel fire which claimed a toll of almost 100 lives, he was one of the many service men who participated in the rescue work. He attended King Edward and Ritchie schools and took a prominent part in community hockey activities.

City Ministers Protest Plan of Sunday Shows

Protest against the proposed experiment to open motion picture theatres to members of the armed forces and merchant marine on Sundays, has been forwarded to Col. J. L. Ralston, minister of national defence by the Edmonton Ministerial Association.

Edmonton, Toronto and Halifax are the Canadian cities selected for the experiment, with results to decide the future policy, according to word received here from the east.

Halsey E. Wakelin, president of the Edmonton Ministerial Association, in his letter of protest to Col. Ralston, said the association considers the decision "an unwarranted intrusion into civilian life." It was contended that a survey taken in Edmonton discloses that adequate entertainment is being provided for service men on Sundays.

The ministers also state it is the responsibility of church leaders to maintain a Christian Sunday in the best interests of the nation.

The Edmonton Ministerial Association, representing all Protestant denominations in this city, most emphatically protest your decision to open theatres on Sunday in this city to, not only persons in the armed services, but also to civilian guests.

AN EXPERIMENT

The experiment of opening theatres in Halifax in 1941 to members of the armed forces only failed.

We consider your decision as an unwarranted intrusion into civilian life. While we share your concern for the morale of the forces, we are opposed for the following reason:

(1) From a survey we are satisfied that adequate entertainment is being provided in Edmonton. See our letter of Dec. 23.

(2) According to our information no local commanding officer has requested this.

(3) As church leaders it is our responsibility to maintain a Christian Sunday in the best interests of our nation.

(4) We are satisfied that this is a move by commercial interests in the war emergency to exploit Sunday for the purpose of profit eventually.

Allow us to assure you that we will oppose this by every means in our power.

THE QUESTION

Should there be health insurance to insure the highest standard of health services, preventive and curative?

THE ANSWERS

FRED JENNINGS, carpenter: The province of Alberta has gone a long way, within its capacity to meet the cost, to give its people a modified health insurance plan. It has its cancer clinics, free tuberculosis treatment, and other forms of medical services. It is ready and willing to co-operate in any national health insurance plan. Such a plan cannot long be delayed.

PAUL HARVEY, accountant: It is most desirable to work out a scheme of health insurance that meets the needs of the people, particularly those of limited income. Under a national health insurance plan the medical profession would be closely organized and more people could enjoy a health service that is not possible now owing to overlapping. More time would be available to the medical profession for research and improvement under an insurance plan.

WILLIAM THOMPSON, clerk: Now that the Canadian Medical Association has approved the principle of health insurance it should not take long to work out a scheme that will be practicable. The doctors form a vital part of any scheme of health insurance. They must give whole-hearted co-operation to any scheme formulated if success is to be achieved.

61st Field Battery Observes 3rd Anniversary of Departure

Third anniversary will be observed Sunday of the departure for service overseas of a unit of the Canadian Army, composed almost wholly of men who were real Edmontonians. It was on Jan. 21, 1940, that officers and men of the 61st Field Bty., R.C.A., Canadian Army (Active), boarded a train at the C.N.R. station, and pulled out for the east.

Although that day, too, was extremely cold a big crowd of relatives and friends braved the elements to bid farewell to the troops.

Maj. F. Armour Ford, well known city lawyer, and son of Mr. Justice Frank Ford of the Alberta appeal court was in command of the battery at that time.

Since promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel this officer was transferred to the 3rd Field Regiment, R.C.A.

MANY PROMOTED

A striking feature about the 61st Bty. is the high number of officers that have won promotion overseas and the large number of men who have returned to Canada to train for commissions.

Very few have been invalided home, due probably to the large number of athletically inclined men among the personnel.

The battery has also won many awards for tactics and [illegible] displays, since going overseas.

The 61st is part of the 8th Army Field Regiment, R.C.A., indicating it has been chosen as corps troops.

FORMED IN 1920

The 61st Battery was formed in 1920 during the re-organization of the militia after the First Great War. Four 18-pounder field guns were its first complement. Maj. Hastings Mewburn was first commander. By 1939 the unit was ready for action in the present great struggle.

While the men of Edmonton's gallant 61st carry on in Britain waiting for the day, not so distant now, when the unit will swing into action against the foe, a smart, well-trained reserve unit of the battery is carrying on in Edmonton.

Maj. Nelles V. Buchanan, M.C., is in command of the 61st (Reserve) Battery, R.C.A., and it is considered one of the best trained of all reserve forces in the west.

Edmonton's 61st Battery is marching on to victory.

Around The Town

A meeting of the Board of the Edmonton School District will be held in the Board room, 510 Civic block, on Tuesday, Jan. 26, at 8 p.m., the secretary-treasurer, H. G. Turner, has announced.

Arthur Sparling, old-time resident of Edmonton, died at his home here on Saturday morning, at 10626 66 avenue. He was 75 years old. His wife pre-deceased him several years ago.

Four young women, serving with the Canadian Women's Army Corps in Edmonton, were among applicants for commissions interviewed here Saturday by Brig. F. M. W. Harvey, V.C., M.C., officer commanding M.D. 13. In addition to the women there were 10 men interviewed by Brig. Harvey.

All coal dealers in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba are notified by the coal administrator, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Ottawa, that no deliveries of coal may be made to any customer having 10 days' supply or more on hand, until the present emergency has passed.

The board of United Farmers of Alberta meeting in Calgary at the present time reports that it has returned to office for another year the executive committee, which consists of the following: George E. Church, Balzac; R. Hennig, Fort Saskatchewan; M. H. Ward, Arrowood; Robert Hardiner, Excel; J. K. Sutherland, Hanna; Mrs. Winifred Ross, Millet.

Farmers faced with a curtailment of 25 per cent. of the 1940 output of machinery and manufacture of repair parts increased to 150 per cent of the output of the same year, are urged to take all possible care of their equipment. Suggestions for the care of equipment by W. C. Trimble, Edmonton officer of farm and construction machinery, includes a coat of paint or oil applied to the machine after it has been stored. This will add to the life of any machine.

Resolutions passed at a recent convention of the Alberta Association of Municipal Districts are under discussion in Edmonton today by the organization's executive. The executive, slated to meet the provincial cabinet Monday, also is discussing post-war reconstruction and agricultural problems. P. J. Farnalls, president, Halkirk; J. M. Wheatley, vice-president, Chancellor, and executive members Norman McClellan, Vermilion, and A. J. Cawthorne, Midnapore, with Secretary D. Roberts, Fort Saskatchewan, are attending the meeting.

Guest speaker at next Friday's Junior Chamber of Commerce meeting will be W. Carnill, head of the Unemployment Insurance Commission here. The meeting starts at 6.15 p.m., in the Macdonald hotel. Motion pictures will be shown by H. P. Brown, extension department, University of Alberta.

The freezing order placed on sale of canned milk on Dec. 28 has been lifted according to an announcement by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. The order was placed for the purpose of making a survey of the stocks on hand. All normal sales may be resumed, the Board states, but warns that there should be no rush on the part of consumers to buy up stocks, as any heavy demand on supplies will only result in a curtailment of sales. Consumers are asked to purchase only what they need and when they need it, and to avoid hoarding at all costs.

Farmers in Alberta who buy grain are being advised to order it early by Fred Present, feeds administrator, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, otherwise they may have to wait for it. If a last-minute rush is avoided by those wanting grain it will be possible to plan the shipments, he states. This can only be done though by ordering early. Mr. Present is also asking feed dealers to fill all their storage space and to keep it filled. They may do this without worrying about the price because there is a price floor under feed grains.

Home dressmakers who have been gloating over the fact that they can have the full-skirted, frilly dresses denied their less fortunate sisters who have to buy their frocks ready made, are now going to find that they themselves are restricted. An order issued by J. A. Klein, administrator of women's, girls' and children's clothing, provides that manufacturers must not make or sell or distribute patterns for garments whose measurements exceed by more than five per cent., exclusive of seams, the maximum measurements prescribed by the Board.

Here's good news for "little" girls. Word just received from air force headquarters at Ottawa is that the minimum height standard for women in the women's division has been lowered to four-feet-ten inches. "It used to be five-feet," Section Officer Marjorie Race of the air force recruiting offices told The Bulletin Saturday, "and you'd be surprised at the number of girls just under that height who were not able to join before." And there's no limitation on the trades the "small" girls may enter. They are eligible to serve as photographers, teleprinter operators, transport drivers, stenographers and so on just the same as their taller sisters.

Two well-known Edmonton athletes were included in the list of new R.C.A.F. recruits released Saturday by the Edmonton recruiting centre. They were Lawrence Moreau, 9721 100A street, who is a member of the Maple Leaf Athletic Club and won track and field medals and Donald Thomas, 111[illegible] Ada Boulevard, who won the school championship at McCauley in the shotput event. Both have brothers in the armed services. Moreau has two brothers in the air force, and Thomas has one brother in the air force and one in the navy. Other new recruits include: Thomas Gregory, 9703 89 avenue; George MacKenzie, 10546 78 avenue, Edmonton; Stein Hall, Derwent; Everett Howe, Fort St. John; Joe Shemanski, Warspite; Dennis McAllister, Fern Creek; Milton Rhvason, Westlock; Richard Rigelhof, Clandonald.

Police Probe Plight Family At Boyne Lake

R.C.M.P. are investigating the plight of a family of six children and a mother in the Boyne Lake district, following a report that the father has disappeared and the home has been destroyed by fire.

Frank Sankevich, 38, father of the six children ranging in age from eight months to 10 years, left the farm home several days ago to report to work at a lumber mill 80 miles west of Edmonton.

During his brief stay in the city awaiting his call Sankevich disappeared suddenly leaving his belongings at a rooming house.

After he failed to return for several days the landlady wired Mrs. Sankevich who came to Edmonton with the news that the husband had not returned and that in the meantime their home had been razed by fire on one of the coldest days of the year.

REPORTED CASE

The case was reported to city police who have asked R.C.M.P. to assist with the search for the missing father. R.C.M.P. are also investigating the plight of the family which is believed to be housed [illegible] at the homes of neighbors.

Boyne Lake is located [illegible] of Spedden, which is a town on the St. Paul C.N.R. line about 110 miles east of Edmonton.

Elderly Couple in City Hospital as Result of Mishap

Keen observation on the part of a neighbor probably saved the lives of an elderly couple found suffering at their home from the effects of gas fumes Friday evening.

F. M. Collingwood, 7701 112 avenue, observed that Mr. and Mrs. James Wylie, 7705 112 avenue, were in need of attention as both were apparently ailing.

He called police and a doctor who found that the elderly couple were suffering from fumes.

Frank Drayton, city relief department, was notified and ordered that the couple be taken to the Royal Alexandra hospital. Both are 72 years old and live alone.

Home on Leave

SBA. Kenneth Jones, R.C.N.V.R., son of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Jones of 11620 96 street, who is home on leave after a period of duty "somewhere in Canada." Born at Pontypridd, Wales, he came here with his family in 1930 direct from his birthplace. He attended McCauley and McDougall Commercial schools, during which time he also played in the School boys' Band. At the time of his enlistment in the navy last April, he was a member of the composing room staff of The Edmonton Bulletin.

Carbon Monoxide Said Cause Death

After post-mortem examination into the causes of the sudden death of Frank Kampfler, 32, 11322 93 street, Thursday, Dr. E. A. Braithwaite, chief provincial coroner, announced that no inquest will be necessary. Death was attributed to carbon monoxide poisoning but reason for the presence of the gas in his home has not been divulged.

Kampfler was found in his bed by his brother John, who called after learning that Frank had not been at work for two days. Kampfler lived alone in a house he built by himself last year.

Dr. John W. MacGregor, associate pathologist, University of Alberta, performed the post mortem.

The Human Eye
By J. E. Thomas, Optometrist.

It is amazing how little we really know about some of the most common things of every day life—the eyes for example. Through our eyes we see the wonders of creation, we are able to read and study, and at our work our eyes are the most important part of us.

The eye is the end of a nerve fibre to which nature has given the job of responding and flashing a message to the brain when light falls on it. Without light there is no vision, that is why sunlight is so important to us. It means our very existence.

The eye ball is nearly spherical in shape and measures about an inch in diameter and is composed of three coats, but the chief one is what we call the retina, which receives the picture and transmits it to the brain by way of the optic nerve. The impression we get in the brain is what we call seeing. We see through the eye, but with the mind.

With the great advances made by science it is now possible for almost everyone to enjoy perfect vision, either through naturally perfect eyes, or through eyes whose defects have been corrected, with glasses.

Don't neglect your eyes, they are too important to you. Have them examined at least sign of strain.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

War Work Will Make Single Woman Happy

There Is No Reason to Despair of Having a Mission In Life When One's Country Is At War

There is no more pathetic figure than the middle-aged woman who has no secure place in society, no occupation, and often no money. Sometimes she is a childless widow. Sometimes she is a mother whose children have all married and left her. Sometimes she is an old maid who has spent her life nursing old parents and whose hands are empty when they pass away. Sometimes she is the Aunt Fanny or Cousin Sally who has been given a grudging living in some relative's house.

But always there has been tragedy in her lot, for she has known how bitter is the bread of dependence and how steep are another woman's stairs. She has watered her pillow many a night with the tears of the lonely and unwanted. And she has been bored to extinction by having nothing to do that was interesting, nothing to stimulate her energies, or wake up her sluggish mind, nothing to arouse her ambitions or give any hope for the future.

Very often the situation is complicated by these poor women having "seen better days" as the phrase goes, and having a false pride that makes them unwilling to do any work that isn't glamorous, like writing a best seller, or going in the movies, and these avenues of occupation being closed to them by lack of talent, they drift into the vast army of women who make their age an alibi for becoming parasites.

UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITIES

But the hour of the emancipation of these middle-aged women has struck. No longer do they have to wring their hands and ask helplessly, where do we go from here? The war has opened up the road for them to freedom, to financial independence, to usefulness, to a happier and fuller existence than they have ever known.

Heretofore, even in the business world, the young girls have had the innings and Miss Canada has crowded Aunt Sue out of the good jobs but such is no longer the case. Maybe there are not enough cuties to go around, but, anyway, employers now are looking for sensible, settled help whose nifty slacks and hair bobs won't distract the attention of the male workers, and who won't up and marry some good-looking soldier just about the time they find out what it is all about.

Of course, in the past the trouble with the middle-aged woman has been that she has not been trained to any trade or profession and did not know how to do any kind of work well enough to make it marketable. She may have kept house for twenty years without having the slightest idea of how much it cost to make a three-layered cake, or how to budget her market money. She may have had a knack at sewing and made all her own and her children's clothes, without ever being sure of how they would turn out. She always knew herself to be an amateur and a bungler, and so it is no wonder she was afraid to tackle the big task of supporting herself.

But the necessities of war have solved that problem for the middle-aged woman and taken away from her the fear of the unfit. The government and the colleges have established training schools in which she can develop her talents and be taught new skills and discover abilities that she never even dreamed that she possessed, and thereby earn a salary that will not only buy her cakes and ale, but the knowledge that she need never more be dependent, which is a happiness whose worth cannot be figured in dollars and cents.

USEFUL TO HUMANITY

So I urge of all the unhappy, dissatisfied middle-aged women who have not known what to do with themselves to go into some war plant and learn a trade. The war has given them an opportunity to help their country and help themselves. It has even ministered to their silly false pride, for everybody is doing it, and Mrs. Poor Woman can have no shame in being a riveter when the worker next to her is Mrs. Millionbucks.

And, believe, me, when the war is over every mother's daughter of us is going to need to know some way of earning our bread and butter. Father isn't going to have so much money as he had and be able to support a bunch of girls who are nothing but spenders. Sons are going to have all they can do to feed their own hungry broods, without having a strong, able-bodied, middle-aged mother with a good appetite also sitting in at the dining table three times a day. And parasitic relatives are going to find few doors on the latch for them.

So, if the middle-aged woman is wise, she will realize that this is the psychological moment for her to get busy and make something of her life of which she will be proud instead of ashamed. This is her chance to set herself free by learning some way by which she can support herself, and that will be an untold blessing to her and her family for the in-law problem will be settled when mother has her own pay envelope.

So go to work, ladies, while it is still fashionable as well as profitable to do so.

Use Peanuts—We Have Plenty of 'Em

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Peanuts have become one of the most important of our wartime foods. Responding to a request of the United States Department of Agriculture for a record-breaking production growers in 12 southern states piled up a crop totaling almost three billion pounds. The majority of the crop will be converted into badly needed oil, peanut flour and peanut butter.

Exceptionally rich in protein and vitamin B1, peanuts are a good source of phosphorous and have an appreciable amount of iron. Peanut flour is an easy way to increase the food value of baked products, cereals, and other dishes, and is now being made available in stores throughout the country.

Peanut oil is an excellent substitute for olive oil and its high smoking point—450 degrees—makes it ideal for deep-fat frying of chicken, fish, doughnuts, potato chips and other foods.

PEANUT BUTTER OMELET

Serves 3-4

One-half teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, 4 tablespoons milk, 4 whole eggs, 1/3 cup peanut butter, evaporated milk or cream.

Add salt, pepper and milk to the eggs and beat until light. Pour mixture into a hot greased frying pan and cook slowly until firm. Spread with a mixture of peanut butter softened with undiluted evaporated milk or cream, and fold. Serve on a hot platter.

PEANUT MOLASSES BARS

(1½ dozen)

One-third cup shortening, 1/3 cup powdered sugar, 1/3 cup molasses, grated rind 1 lemon, 1 egg, 2/3 cup sifted flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 cup chopped peanuts.

Cream shortening; add sugar, molasses, grated rind, and egg; beat until light. Add sifted dry ingredients and nuts; mix well. Turn into greased and wax paper-lined pan 8x8x2; bake in moderate oven (325 degrees F.) about 25 minutes. Turn out on rack, remove paper, cut into bars.

Monday's Menu

Breakfast: Grapefruit, whole-wheat griddle cakes, syrup, coffee, milk.

Dinner: Baked lamb stew with vegetables, baked hubbard squash, enriched hard rolls, butter or fortified margarine, green salad, stewed pears, peanut molasses bars, tea, milk.

With the South cards I put in one of the weak opening spade bids that I often make. But Hofmann and O'Hara got right up to game in a hurry.

Dummy won the first trick with the ace of spades. My heart ace was forced out and I led a second spade, which Hofmann took.

He took out trumps, then led a low diamond and won with the queen. Dummy cashed the two top clubs, then led a third, which Hofmann ruffed with his last trump.

As you can see I had to let go a spade to hold both diamonds. But then Hofmann led the spade, and after taking two tricks I had to lead away from my diamond king.

McCoy Health Service

That form of rheumatism called muscular rheumatism by the layman is referred to as fibrositis by the doctor. Fibrositis means an inflammation of fibrous tissue, which lies in between the bundles of muscular tissue. When the fibrous tissue is inflamed this produces the soreness of which the patient complains.

The patient suffering from muscular rheumatism is easily led to believe that most of the trouble lies in the muscles; however, this is not the case as rheumatism has a constitutional cause. When the primary cause is established, then comparatively trivial causes such as over-use of muscles, or exposure to cold or to damp, may serve as exciting causes, bringing on the attack. The cold or damp weather will produce a temporary slowing up of the circulation in some particular part and the [illegible] part will become painful, stiff, or sore because of the accumulation of rheumatic toxins in that area due to the sluggish circulation. Cold, damp, or over-exertion are simply exciting causes and have the power to induce an attack only when the fundamental toxic condition is present.

Fibrositis may attack the muscular tissue of any part of the body but its favorite sites are the muscles of the neck and the muscles of the lower back. It is more common among men than among women and is known in both an acute and a chronic form. The symptoms vary according to whether the disease is acute or chronic but as a general rule the acute attacks steadily grow worse until more or less permanent muscular disability results. In the acute attack, the pain in the muscles may be very intense and may prove so severe that the patient will make every effort to keep from moving the affected muscles. In the chronic form, the painful sensation may be noticeable only when the patient attempts to move the muscles and at other times may subside into a dull ache. Considerable stiffness is the rule and the patient will notice that he feels worse as soon as he becomes cold. The patient with muscular rheumatism will try to keep as quiet as possible and will hug the fire, if left to his own devices.

In the treatment of muscular rheumatism, I find that the fast taken at the start will obtain the best possible results, as during the fast, the blood chemistry will be adjusted closer to the normal. Also, during this time, the body will cleanse itself of the irritating substances which have accumulated and which produce soreness, stiffness and lameness when localized in muscular tissue. Usually the pain in the muscles will leave after two or three days on the fasting regimen if the patient is having an acute attack. In chronic cases a longer time may be required to secure results but even so the good effect of the fast will be apparent. During the fast it is important that the patient secure one enema a day.

Following the fast, the greatest benefit will be secured if the patient uses a diet consisting of leafy green vegetables for several days. After this time a well-balanced diet may be used and the patient is given a moderate amount of meat, cooked vegetables and salads, but is advised to use only the minimum amount of starches and sugars, or to avoid these altogether for a time.

The use of heat is of value in securing relief from the pain of muscular rheumatism. The patient may immerse the body twice a day in a tub of hot water to which has been added a handful of Epsom salts. Or, the hot water bottle may be used, or the electric pad, etc. However, it is well to remember that such relief is temporary and that for permanent relief, reliance must be placed on removing the systemic cause.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Cork Legs
ARE NEVER MADE OF CORK!
1-23

Nobody ever saw a cork leg, yet many people think that artificial limbs are made of this material. The name had its origin in the fact that a Doctor Cork is supposed to have designed the first artificial legs—but he did not use any cork. Artificial limbs are usually made of wood, metal and leather. Many surgical devices are named for physicians who first invented them, and some organs of the body are named for doctors who first found their use.

What To Do

How do the women of the family purchase mourning clothes for the funeral of a loved one?

Answer—A close friend, or relative of the bereaved family will usually make any purchases that are necessary.

The duty of writing notes and seeing visitors also falls on an intimate friend or relative. Notes written in the name of the family are written on black-edged, or plain white paper, and are signed with the name of the people for whom they are written.

Women of the bereaved family do not see callers unless they are in control of themselves, and usually they do not see people until after the funeral.

Minute Make-Ups

A woman can lift her spirits in a minute by—buying a red hat and a lipstick in matching red. A big jar of her favorite face cream. A new and alluring perfume. An entirely new hairdo. A new shade of face powder. By trying out new eye makeup. It takes but a minute to add such allure. Try it next time your spirits droop!

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

In every aspect of child rearing the practice which is good today may be unwise tomorrow because it is not in keeping with the development of the child.

We expect to feed a small baby because we know he cannot hold his own spoon; but the moment he is able we give him increasing opportunities to feed himself so he can be independent of us.

He may drink from a bottle until he is nine or ten months old but when he is able to drink adequate amounts of fluid from a glass or cup we introduce that utensil as a regular one at mealtimes until baby can take all of his milk in that way.

One could keep on enumerating the dozens and one advanced steps which must be inaugurated by the mother so baby's development will continue in an upward line. These advances enable him to acquire the more difficult skills which are related to his increasing age and capacities.

The mother frequently puts a brick on her child's head when she denied him the privilege of growing up and assuming the habits and conduct in keeping with his age. We must expect that children will cling to the familiar—if allowed to do so. It is we who must constantly elevate their standards and give them the incentive to try to reach them.

Mrs. A. C. says her only disagreement with her daughter-in-law has to do with the way she feeds her only son. "She started to give him canned baby food when he was 3 months old and now at 6 years he still is being fed this strained food.

"He eats very little solid food, not even egg or potato. She puts beef or calves' liver with his strained food.

He is a tall boy and weighs more than 60 pounds. But he has one cold after another. They had his tonsils and adenoids removed this winter, but he has had two colds since. The doctor cannot find a thing wrong with him, but he [illegible] how he is fed.

"They have a cook who was once head cook in a baby hospital and she would willingly fix anything for him, but my daughter-in-law won't listen to anyone. He is extra bright."

You slew my one thought on this problem when you added that last sentence. I was sure that he might be mentally backward. Now I suspect that his mother must be. It is hard to find an excuse for one who refuses to listen to anyone and who pursues a policy so clearly out of line with the child's growth.

He should be sitting at the table and eating what all the rest of the family eats. What are his teeth for? What will he do when he eats away from home? There is some reason here, which one can't see, which is giving his mother satisfaction in keeping her boy a baby.

Our leaflet "Feeding From 3 to 8 Years," may be had by sending a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

THREE ENEMIES OF RUBBER

Enemy No. 1 of household rubber is heat. The higher the temperature the more quickly the rubber gets weak, cracks, becomes sticky. Enemy No. 2 is light. Sunlight, because it combines the harmful action of light and heat, is hard on the kind of rubber in many articles, especially if the rubber is partly stretched when the sun hits it. Enemy No. 3 is oil and grease.

Scotsmen Wary About Lassies Going English

By DOUGLAS AMARON

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(CP)—The men and women of Scotland have different views about the transfer of the thousands of Scotland's daughters to English war factories. The men oppose it; the women, some at least, look upon it as an adventure.

Scotland's "mobile" women workers have been the subject of considerable Parliamentary discussion, platform argument and newspaper comment. Scottish M.P.'s have made quite an issue of them, and David Kirkwood, Dumbarton Burghs' labor member, wrote a long article for the Sunday Express saying that "Scotland wants her war-working girls."

Crux of the fuss seems to be that there aren't enough factories in Scotland to absorb the labor. So mobile workers have been transferred to the English Midlands where there are plenty of factories, but not enough persons to man them

Robert Boothby, Aberdeen's M.P., tabled a motion in the Commons bearing the names of nine Scottish members urging the government to establish more factories in Scotland and place contracts for war production in them. The motion added that "Scottish girls, who are mobile workers and who have been compulsorily transferred to England, should be given the opportunity to return to Scotland as and when work becomes available for them."

WANTED IT STOPPED

Scottish socialists, meeting in Glasgow, unanimously urged their Parliamentary spokesmen to demand that transference of Scots girls to England be stopped. Andrew Fleming told about a girl with two sisters in the Women's Auxiliary Air Force, a third in a local factory and a paralyzed mother.

Ordered to go to England, the girl got a six-month extension from the Hardship Committee, but the labor ministry refused to accept this decision, ruling that the sister in the factory could look after the mother. On the other hand, a resolution stressing the undesirability of transferring labor was remitted for further consideration when discussed at the annual conferences in Glasgow of unions affiliated to the Scottish Trades Union Congress

Feminine opposition to the resolution sent it back, and one woman delegate told the conference the girls didn't mind leaving home. Most of them regarded it as an adventure, she said, condemning the politicians for using girls "for propaganda purposes

Kirkwood in his newspaper article which, incidentally, appeared some time before the Glasgow conference, said it was true some girls looked upon the transfer as an adventure, but that most of them didn't want to go

"Scotland is being drained of its young womanhood," he wrote. "If Scotland is to survive as a home of Scottish people we cannot view without anxiety the mass migrations of our young women."

Then he added, unwittingly expressing what may be an important reason for male objection to the transfers: "Everyone knows that in the matter of falling in love it is the man on the spot who counts—and the Englishman is a good wooer."

Woman Handles Five Ton Electric Crane With Utmost Ability

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(CP)—Mrs. Blackaby handling her five-ton electric crane is the star performer among 600 women who perform man-sized jobs at a large railway goods depot.

When the first women were hired by the railway company as a war-time emergency, the idea was that they would perform only lighter duties. But the women wouldn't hear of it and soon Mrs. Blackaby was on the crane, though she admits it was two months before she could "aim it right."

Some of the women are "van boys" on lorries driven by their husbands. Mrs. Condon, one of them, says she and her companions decided to take the jobs to "keep an eye on our old men when we heard girls were being taken on."

All volunteers, the women said their employment was due to shortage of men so they wouldn't be satisfied unless they were doing men's jobs. "If a man can do it, so can we," declared Mrs. Owen, a grandmother who cares for her two grandchildren in the evenings after her daughter sets out for her war job.

'43 Jewelry Goes "Nuts" But Aids War

Have you peeked inside milady's jewel box for the new year? Chances are, you were greatly surprised at what you found there. An assortment of feathers, wood, plastic, leather, nuts and shells would meet your eyes. All forms of bracelets, necklaces, lapel pins and earrings remind you somewhat vaguely of mystic charms worn by Mongol princesses

Yes, civilized misses of 1943 seem to be copying some of the jungle array of her less cultured sister and with nary a blush. Instead, she is wearing her adornments with a mixed feeling of patriotism and pride; patriotism because she has foregone the costume jewelry of expensive metal alloys to aid the war effort and pride, because she has more than likely created her decorative masterpiece with her own two hands!

For in this way milady is aiding the war effort, and incidentally having more fun out of expressing her own personality and originality by this means than she has ever known before. The best dressed woman of today is not the lady with the expensive costume and jewelry, but the one wearing the most original array of articles rummaged from the attic trunk, cellar treasure box, kitchen cupboard, garden, and innumerable articles ranging from extremes of the vegetable and animal kingdom out-of-doors. And what is more important, she has probably designed and created the workmanship on them herself!

During 1943 a man will no longer walk down the street casting his masculine speculation on women's hats to register bewilderment, approval, fear or dismay, but he will also find himself curiously studying the array of costume finery displayed by the perky little 20th century miss

What caused this trend of fashion? It received its biggest boost at the beginning of the war, when it was decreed that manufacturers of costume jewelry substitute other materials than metals for their manufacture, and hence wood and plastic and cheaper alloys came into being, which was soon followed by milady's ingenious fashioning of her own substitutes.

So next time you pass comment on my lady's neckpiece, remember that she is wearing such with a feeling of patriotism and pride, and win her graces by observing "How did you ever think of that ingenious combination of candy macaroni—or nuts—or shells—or what have you?"—B.H.

C.W.A.C. Girls Are Introduced To London Fog

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(CP)—Nobody can tell members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps serving in Britain anything about a London fog. They have been through about as foggy a night as London ever had or will have

Not long after their arrival here a fog settled over London and though the girls' residence was only 15 minutes' walk from the building where they work it was decided to send them home in two trucks because of their lack of familiarity with London. Both trucks left the office district at 6 p.m. The first arrived at the residence at 7:45 p.m., and the second at 8:20 p.m

FINDING THEIR WAY

"You just couldn't see a thing and our driver would go ahead just a few steps at a time and then get out and try and determine where we were," said Pte. Cecilia Eardley Wilmot of Quebec

The girls found it more thrilling than frightening to experience such a fog. "We just sat in the truck and sang 'Lost in a Fog', 'Show Me the Way to Go Home', and so on until we finally made it." said Pte. Stella Cromar-Bruce of Vancouver

Miss de Miribel, French Lass Stirs Interest for Homeland

By MARGARET ECKER

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.—(CP)—Elizabeth de Miribel, whose mission in life is promoting the interests of the Fighting French in Canada could probably sell ice to Eskimos

Miss de Miribel is an expert horsewoman. She'd make a fine Joan of Arc. Actually the De Gaulle banner under which she wages her battles is the two-headed cross of the Maid of Orleans.

But Miss de Miribel isn't interested in any such nonsense as fiery white chargers. Despite her good looks and her youth—she's only 27—she is a strictly down-to-business person. It's hard to steer her conversation away from the suffering in her motherland and the brave new world she wants to help to build after the war

Brown-eyed Miss de Miribel knows a bit about suffering herself. She wasn't in France after the German occupation but she came to Canada to carry on her crusade friendless and penniless, with only a vague knowledge of English. But she pooh-poohs any suggestion that this was a tough assignment.

"Oh, yes, I know what it is to be lonely and perhaps a little hungry—but let's not talk about it. Anything I have endured is so little compared with the suffering of my friends in France."

FIGHTING FAMILY

Miss de Miribel is a soldier's daughter, granddaughter and great-granddaughter and she lives up to it. Her great-grandfather was Marshal de MacMahon, president of the French republic between 1873 and 1879. Her grandfather was Gen Charles de Miribel, and her father was a colonel who fought for France in this war. The father, a brother and four sisters are still in France, and "all I hope is that they are together." Miss de Miribel said "It's not easy to be here, away from them."

"Sometimes I think I should try to get back. But then I think of the rehabilitation, those grim post-war days. For those I will need my health and strength. I would have neither if I were in Paris. It's better that I stay."

"All the things that happened in France under Vichy—they made me very ashamed," she said with an eloquent gesture. "Now I am happy, and proud at what my people have done—at the gallant way they have resisted inside France, at the way they are organizing now without thought of party or class. It gives me great hope for the new France."

You'd never know to look at vivacious Miss de Miribel that her shoulders are almost bowed down with university degrees. She's no blue stocking but holds a bachelor of science and languages degree from the Sorbonne, a bachelor of philosophy degree from the Sorbonne, and she studied psychology at the University of Geneva and the Institute Rousseau Des Sciences de L'education in Switzerland. She also holds a teaching certificate from the University of Geneva and worked as a translator and editor for the French ministry of foreign affairs. She was later secretary of the French Mission of economic warfare in London and subsequently secretary to Gen. de Gaulle.

Her love is children and her chief study is child and social psychology. "Before the war I wanted to work with weak children to help them adjust themselves to their environment," she said

"Now I know all France's children will need special care after the war. That is my job. I have many dear friends in France; many more have died for France. But I am glad I was not engaged or married to anyone. Now I can give my whole life to my work."

ELECTRIC IRON

Her electric iron is one of Mrs Housewife's most valued servants. Knowing that new irons and repair parts may be scarce, she takes good care of it. She keeps the sole of the iron clean; wipes it off with a damp cloth, soapsuds or mild [illegible] powder if necessary, when the iron is cool. She never runs over buttons or other sharp articles that may scratch its smooth surface. She never, never drops the iron or puts it away before it is perfectly cold.

Getting Around

through the streets with the mercury plunging to 40 degrees below and lower. Street cars, (24 of them), ground to a halt with burned-out motors. A man who returned here Friday from Calgary told us he honestly had never imagined that weather could be so truly terrible. And that man has lived in western Canada for 35 years.

Seattle, out on the "balmy" Pacific coast, suffered a complete tie-up, with the huge Boeing airplane plant shutting down. It was bad in Edmonton all right but it could have been worse.

Some things really look funny when the mercury sags to 52 below. There was the Australian airman with his skates, who seemed to think the night ideal for a spin on the blades. Then we saw five sweet young ladies muffled and ruddy with the cold, eating, with the keenest enjoyment, five big dishes of ice cream

And two husky young plane pilots, clad in heavy fur parkas, with thick soled flying boots, revelling in the glories of sipping ice cream sodas through straws.

One thing that emerged from the frigidity of the week that we think is all to the merry. That was a new tolerance for what used to be considered queer and unorthodox winter wearing apparel. A person could wear the "funniest-looking" things and no one turned up his or her nose. It was a return to the simple and true values of utility with a vengeance.

Actually, it seems that only under the stress of severe climatic conditions can human beings be persuaded to think in a rational manner about clothing.

We seem to forget, as a race, that clothes were first worn by human beings for the simple but perfectly "fantastic" purpose of keeping people warm.

Varsity Play Group Scores In New Drama

Lillian Hellman's "Watch on the Rhine," realistic and dramatic story of a German who loved his Germany of the gay pre Nazi years, and fought for its restoration to the point of self-sacrifice, was presented Friday night in Convocation Hall, University of Alberta, by the University Dramatic Society.

Given special permission to present the three-act play before the movie version which is to be released shortly, the dramatic club is worthy of praise for its excellent interpretation. The opening act could have been finished off to a more interesting degree, as the actors appearing at the very first seemed stage frightened. But all went well afterward.

The setting was an American country home, belonging to a wealthy United States family, the Farrelly's. Mrs. Fanny Farrelly, a nervous type of woman with a great deal of pride, was well portrayed by Evelyn Johnston.

FINE PERFORMANCE

Her youngest son, David Farrelly, a lawyer, who paid little attention to the whims of his mother, was well played by Jim Spillios, to whom much credit is due for filling in at the last moment for Art Hiller, the original David.

Villain of the story, Teck De Brancovis, former Rumanian diplomat siding with Nazism, Fascism and Socialism, was portrayed by Joe Shoctor, well known for his excellent acting ability. Even to his foreign accent, Shoctor played the part well.

Bill Carr, as Kurt Muller, handled the lead to the point of rivalling his colleague, Joe Shoctor. Bill was a suave, gentle, educated German who worked skillfully against the Nazis and all they stand for. His wife Sara Muller, formerly Sara Farrelly, played by Isabel Macgregor, was without doubt his devoted wife and honest follower.

OTHERS IN CAST

Genice Brown as Marthe De Brancovis, wife of the tyrant, Paulette Jegard as Anise, French servant of the Farrelly's, Bob Willis as Joseph the colored servant.

E. Maldwyn Jones merits warm praise for the manner in which he directed the play, and brought out all its fine points.

Others assisting with the success of the production include Fred Simpson, stage manager; Harold Pergamit, Jack Bicknell and Nathan Leith, stage assistants; Russ Hannah, lightrician; Bill Giles, and Jim Barton, lightrician's assistants; Roma Ballhorn, property mistress; Betty Tregale, Pat Darling and Audrey Macpherson, property assistants; Molly Hughes, costume mistress; Mary Vere Souch, costume assistant.

Inter-act music was supplied, and make-up was arranged by the University Make-up club.

Wheat Price at 'Peg Unchanged

Export business in Canadian wheat included a cargo of 300,000 bushels sold to a neutral country.

In the cash market only a few odd cars of low-grade wheat traded, but good demand in oats was disclosed with approximately 500,000 bushels going for rail shipment to the United States. Trade in coarse grain futures was on a moderate scale.

Kinsmen Club Tb. Seal Drive Shows Big Gain

With returns still incomplete, the Edmonton Kinsmen club tuberculosis seal campaign has already exceeded returns of the previous campaign by 45 per cent according to the latest report given by Theron Jewett, secretary of the Kinsmen tuberculosis seal campaign, at the regular fortnightly meeting of the club at the Macdonald hotel Friday.

Following the business session the Kinsmen heard Donald Menzies, editorial staff of the Edmonton Journal, speak on his impressions of the Japanese and the Chinaman gathered when he spent several years in the Orient.

A dinner preceded the business meeting.

Neal Replies To Charges by Premier Conant

MONTREAL, Jan. 23—W. M. Neal, vice-president, Canadian Pacific Railway, Friday released a letter addressed by him to Premier Conant of Ontario, replying to the recent letter which the Premier of Ontario addressed to Colonel J. A. Cross, Chief Commissioner, of the Board of Transport Commissioners for Canada, in connection with the train wreck at Almonte, Ontario, on December 27.

Mr. Neal's letter follows. In a letter to the Chief Commissioner of the Board of Transport Commissioners which is reported in the press as having been made public by you, you are quoted as saying, with reference to the recent deplorable accident at Almonte, that "There is no doubt in the minds of the provincial officials at the inquest that the rules and regulations under which the trains involved in the wreck were operating are sadly obsolete and much in need of revision."

The Chief Coroner of the province is also quoted in the press as having said at the inquest that "the cobwebs should be dusted off the rule books".

UNWARRANTED

These public statements are, in our view, unwarranted as not being in accordance with the facts of the case.

Even the Coroner's jury, though taking a humane view of circumstances which had brought tragedy to one of the men concerned, did not see fit to place its verdict upon the ground so flippantly suggested by the Chief Coroner. In point of fact, the company's rules (with one exception to be mentioned) conform in every material respect to those adopted as standard throughout this continent, and are the result of the best judgment and experience of skilled railway operating men in the United States and Canada. Similar rules are in use on the Canadian National Railways and were adopted within the past few years on the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway for the operation of which you and your associates in the Ontario government are responsible.

The exception to which I refer is a specific rule in the Canadian Pacific rule book, designed to afford added protection to a train standing at a station, which was sanctioned by the governor-in-council on the recommendation of the board of railway commissioners as recently as 1936, and the observance of which would have prevented this accident.

These rules necessarily depend for their efficacy upon human agencies, but no accident in train operation ever occurs on the Canadian Pacific, or, indeed, on any well managed railway system, which is not the subject of searching investigation with relation to the operating rules involved.

As attorney-general of the province of Ontario you, of course, appreciate that the verdict of a coroner's jury determines nothing insofar as legal responsibility is concerned, and that the law makes ample provision for fixing responsibility for this calamity.

The press comment upon your letter shows that an unfair and improper reflection has been made upon this company's operation personnel and methods in general; and however reluctant we may be to indulge in newspaper controversy regarding a question which should be decided by a competent tribunal, we feel obliged, since your letter was handed to the press, to take the same course with regard to this one.

Yours very truly, (signed) W. M. Neal, Vice-Pres.

New U.S. Farm Bill Seeks Price Boost

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP)—A bill calling for upward revision of farm parity price levels, to include the cost of farm labor, was approved unanimously yesterday by the House of Representatives agriculture committee. (Parity is a price intended to give a unit of farm production the same purchasing power it had in some past favorable period for agriculture, usually 1909-14.)

C. of C. Head States Private Industry Best

WINNIPEG, Jan. 23.—(CP)—R. P. Jellett of Montreal, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said in an address here last night that state-controlled industry could not adequately meet the needs of the people.

He told the Winnipeg board of trade that individual enterprise and free industry were best fitted to cope with the problems of post-war reconstruction.

The alternative to competitive free enterprise would be state ownership, he said, adding: "Can you think of anything more likely to produce inefficiency and waste, to remove the rewards of individual effort, initiative and invention and to drag the life of the country down to a lower level?"

BRACKEN ATTENDS

Mr. Jellett warned that "advocates of jettisoning free enterprise in favor of state ownership can make all sorts of promises as they are without either business experience or responsibility."

John Bracken, premier for 20 years and now national Progressive Conservative leader, attended the meeting long enough to say "Well . . . so long boys," to the more than 300 members.

J. D. McDonald was elected president of the board for 1943.

Establishment and implementation of "community committees" throughout Canada were urged by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce president. The committees, he said, would consider all phases of reconstruction and inaugurate plans for providing full post-war employment.

FIVE AIMS OF FUTURE

Mr. Jellett said the five aims for Canadian business of the future are:

Full employment.
Increased social security.
Higher standards of nutrition.
Improved educational facilities.

890 Germans Are Believed Killed In Berlin Raids

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Information reaching diplomatic sources in Stockholm last night said it was estimated that the R.A.F. killed 890 Germans in the bombing raids on Berlin last week-end. The Germans have admitted only a list of 110 dead, the highest in the capital since the war began.

ST. RAYMOND DE PORTNEUF, Que., Jan. 23.—(CP)—Georges Henri, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Dube of Riviere Bleue, was burned to death in a fire that destroyed a logging hut at Lac Charlot, 40 miles north of here, according to word reaching here yesterday.

U.S. Government Sells Wheat to Curb Advances

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The United States government tossed its 235,000,000-bushel stock of wheat on the market today in a move to keep prices from advancing above the parity level.

The wheat was offered at prices equivalent to parity at the point of storage. Parity prices vary according to point of storage and quality of the grain, but the national average Dec. 15 was $1.37 a bushel.

Officials said that wheat had been advancing and that today's action was expected to keep market prices from going above parity as long as government stocks were available at that price.

CONSIDER CEILING

(Parity is the United States agriculture department's determination of the fair price relationship between what the farmer sells and what he buys. For most commodities, it is based on relationships which existed during the pre-war period 1909-1914.)

The selling order followed reports that the government was considering placing a ceiling on wheat, similar to that established on corn recently, to prevent development of a new price squeeze on millers. Prices millers receive for flour are controlled by price ceilings. Those ceilings were raised recently after advancing wheat prices cut the millers' margins to a point where many claimed they were being forced to operate at a loss.

The government wheat was acquired through liquidation of loans to growers.

LOAN RATE 85 PER CENT

In determining the sales price, the government will add 23 cents a bushel to the 1942 grower wheat loan rate at the point of storage. The loan rate was 85 per cent of parity.

The government has been selling lower grades of wheat to farmers for livestock feed at prices equivalent to 85 per cent of the parity price of corn to encourage greater production of meat dairy and poultry products for the war food program. This wheat-feed sales program will be continued. Sales for feed purposes are limited by law to 125,000,000 bushels during the fiscal year ending June 30.

Four Theft Cases In Police Court

Four cases of theft were disposed of in city police court Saturday by Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C.

Andrew Kostyck was found guilty of theft of five pairs of women's silk stockings off a bargain counter in a city store, and fined $15 and costs. His case was heard Friday afternoon and Kostyck was remanded for sentence for one day.

Kostyck was found guilty of stealing the stockings then handing them to a female accomplice after they made their way out of the store. The fine carries with it an optional jail sentence of 21 days.

Three youths pleaded guilty to theft charges and all were remanded for sentence until Friday.

John Kawiuk pleaded guilty to the theft of a woman's purse containing $12. He also pleaded guilty to breaking into the Central Bakery and stealing 91 cents.

Clarence David Gee pleaded guilty to stealing a suitcase containing personal effects, as well as to a charge of breaking into a rooming house and taking a quantity of clothing and personal effects.

Third offender of thievery was Hubert Perrott who pleaded guilty to theft from a "friend."

8th Army Takes Last Outpost of Italian Empire

CAIRO, Jan. 19.—(Delayed)—(AP)—The British 8th Army's final drive to clean up Tripolitania began at dawn, Jan. 15, with Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's war cry: "On to Tripoli!"

His order of the day was read to the troops huddled together in small groups just before they attacked. It said:

"Tripoli is the only town in the Italian overseas empire still remaining in their possession. Therefore we will take it from them; they will then have no empire.

"If each one of us, whether frontline soldier or officer or man whose duty is performed in some other sphere, puts his whole heart and soul into this next contest, then nothing can stop us. Nothing has stopped us since the battle of Egypt began Oct. 23. Nothing will stop us now."

Charge Hospitals Unable Get Beef

SYDNEY, N.S., Jan. 23.—(CP)—Charges that Cape Breton hospitals have been unable to obtain beef for some time, while packing houses had "ample" supplies, were made by Mayor D. J. MacLean of Sydney yesterday at a meeting of the Cape Breton joint expenditure board. The beef was consigned to the army, Mayor MacLean said, but added he felt hospitals should be given some "consideration."

Half Rommel's 126,000 Troops Out of Action

LONDON, Jan. 23—(CP)—Military circles here estimate Field Marshal Erwin Rommel had 12 divisions of Axis troops at his disposal when the British 8th Army opened its offensive at El Alamein last Oct. 19.

Of these, four were German—two infantry and two armored. The Italians had two armored divisions in addition to six divisions of infantry.

A German division when at full strength consists of approximately 14,000 men, an Italian division about 10,000.

Thus Rommel is estimated to have had about 126,000 men when he began his long retreat across Egypt and Libya, but he is believed to have lost perhaps half his force in killed or captured between Alamein and Tripoli.

R.A.F. Blasts Western Reich In Night Raids

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(CP)—For the second successive night R.A.F. bombers were reported today to have stabbed during the night at western Germany, which embraces the great industrial Ruhr Valley and such important centres at Dusseldorf, Essen, Duisburg, Cologne and Frankfurt.

First news of the raid came from the Berlin radio, which claimed scattered bombings caused civilian casualties and some property damage.

The R.A.F. has been over Germany on 12 previous nights this month, including the heavy attacks on Berlin last Saturday and Sunday.

German planes struck back by bombing several places in northeastern and southern England last night, but the raids were not on a heavy scale and while damage was done casualties were reported light.

A number of German raiders, gliding in above the clouds, bombed and machine-gunned a village in south England this morning, causing considerable damage. There were casualties, including some killed it was reported.

Birds Interest Boys and Girls

Every boy and girl in Edmonton is interested in birds. They like to welcome them in the spring, to hear their songs and to watch them build a nest. You are sorry to see them leave in the autumn and thankful for those that remain throughout the winter. Every boy and girl should be interested in looking after the birds to see that no enemy attacks the nest.

It is nice to have the birds around your homes, to make friends of them and to help them in any way you can. Birds hide the nest sometimes that no enemy will find it or perhaps place it in such a way that nothing can very well reach it. Their home is as dear to them as ours is to us.

Perhaps there is no better way to express appreciation to bird friends than to help them provide a home.

The Kiwanis Club believes every boy and girl will be interested in the various kinds of homes that are most suitable to different kinds of birds and that you would like to make a home for some kind of bird in which you are particularly interested. The Kiwanis Club will tell you something about these homes and will shortly announce a very interesting contest for you in making a home for a pair of these birds. Watch the boys' and girls' column next Saturday; there will be something interesting.

Hi-School Hi-Lights

COMMERCIAL
By Don Daynes

With the weather seemingly going to continue to stay at its present all-time low it should be apparent to most students that there would be no sleigh-ride on Friday of this week. As the postponement of the Commercial social could not be avoided it was apparent that they would agree to having it put off for at least one week. All students were notified but if you were one of those who turned up at the school, all we can say is that we hope you are not laid up too long with frozen feet.

Another feature of the weather has been the school absentees. Attendance in all rooms in considerably below normal. How about coming back to the halls on Monday, friends?

Mr. Hollingsworth and Mr. Page have taken on two jobs that don't seem to be paying. The former is trying to get some girls to come out to make a basketball team and the latter is trying to put some sense into the male basketballers. The boys suffered defeat at the hands of Eastwood several days ago but are determined to beat the club at the next game if they have to do it with the help of the girls. How about some of the girls coming out for practices and getting a team that will make a better showing than the boys did? This does not mean, of course that the boys will lose the next game.

The Learn-to-Dance club has had the misfortune of losing its president to a downtown firm and there consequently will be another organization meeting of this club soon to decide who can ably handle the task. Pat Moran did a fine job and we were sorry to see him go, but he is not the only pupil to leave school since the commencement of this second term.

UNIVERSITY
By Jane Becker

The Varsity High students' council lost no time in staging another "Lit" just two weeks after the new term opened. On Jan. 15 the students gathered in the "chicken coop" to see, among other things, two very timely films, "Inside Fighting Russia" and "London Scrap-Book". These were presented through the courtesy of the U. of A. extension department and H. P. Brown, who introduced the reels. In addition to these main features, the school orchestra, directed by Miss A. Bowman, and some individual talent were heard. To help the executive in putting on other lits and entertainments, A. E. Rosborough criticized the program, from both a favorable and unfavorable standpoint. Master of ceremonies was the students' council lit director, John Gordon.

The first basketball game against Scona turned out definitely in favor of Scona, and the boys are trying to forget about the score. However, the U.H.S. team expects to counter-attack in the return match, to be played in the Normal School gym soon.

Together with other groups in the city, the Varsity high I.S.C.F. held a skating party at the Alberta Avenue rink early this month, which proved very successful.

STRATHCONA
Gwen McGregor

A Year Book meeting was held on Monday in the school library. The editor is Margaret Sheldon with Bill Jewett and Lois Dunlop as co-editors. Brian Maxwell is head of advertising, Bob Weyman business manager, Sheila Jackson club reporter, Gwen McGregor social editor, Penny Pryor exchange editor, and Brian Sproule art editor. Foster Scott is head of photography assisted by Ken Black, James Prichard and Ronald Lilly.

Two girls' basketball practices were held this week. Coaches are Norman Swail and Gordon MacRae and Miss Holmgren, P.T. instructor is manager of the team. A good number of girls turned out and after a while inter-school games will be played. A short schedule with the Normal School and Varsity High will be carried out soon.

The orchestra of Strathcona which played at our Year Play is certainly an asset to any school. Although many of its members are not from our high school the orchestra is under the auspices of Strathcona High. Mrs. J. B. Carmichael certainly knows how to train musiciams as was well shown last week. Students from any part of the city are welcome to attend the practices. The troops are looking forward to hearing the orchestra at the Legion Hut on Wednesday.

A boys' senior basketball game was held Thursday with Varsity High at the Garneau gym. Mr. Davies is the manager of the team. A junior boys' basketball team has organized with Dave Ellis as coach.

COMPETITION

The students taking typing 1 began an interesting competition last week. Under W. Montgomery a unique system has been arranged. The classes are divided in two parts and every student in one group competes with every other student in that group. This not only heightens the efforts for better and more accurate typing but also reveals any really good typists.

Because of the cold weather many things planned for this week have been cancelled. Wednesday the Year Play was to be produced for the troops at the Army Hut however it was too cold for transportation of the scenery, etc. Wednesday, Jan. 27, is now the date set for the production.

At the time of this writing, plans for the skating party are in progress, but if there is no change in weather both this and the Badminton Club sleigh ride will be cancelled.

For those who bring their lunches there has been started a series of informal dances at noon. With records supplied by the students, the "swing fans" gather and jive to their hearts' content. They are watched by many fascinated onlookers.

Thursday a meeting was held for the formation of a Ping Pong Club. This was well attended by eager students who have been waiting for this club to begin. All boys interested are requested to attend a curling club organization meeting on Monday. Girls may object if there is no curling club for them and may get one organized.

VICTORIA
By Jack Towers

The highlight of activities here this week was the big program dance held in the gym on Friday night. A good-sized crowd "jived" and "fluffed" to the "sweet" and "hot" playing of Ken Lucas' "Men About Tunes."

The skating party, twice postponed because of weather conditions, was cancelled because of the dance. Another party will probably be organized later in the season.

The Vic senior girls' basketball team got off to a good start in inter-school games when they defeated Eastwood with the score at 11 to 16.

Six student teachers from the faculty of education of the university have been observing and practicing teaching at Vic this week. Although they left on Friday they will be back later in the year to continue their work with us.

EASTWOOD
By Edna Remnick

The girls' senior basketball team of E.H.S. played against the Vic senior basketball team, on Wednesday. Both teams were in good condition, and the match was exciting.

The tryouts for the play "Happy Journey" were held on Tuesday, so that a cast could be chosen.

The fact that below zero weather has cracked down on us has not stopped the bowling club. Every Wednesday the club troops down to the Rec for their weekly workout.

Pictures for the Phi-Kappa snap contest have been coming in in good numbers, and the judges expect to have a large job on their hands at judging time.

The school yells were judged on Wednesday by the Gazette staff. The prize for the best went to Barbara Newnham.

TECHNICAL
By Wilson Burkholder

When Cliff Wilkinson joined the R.C.A.F. Tech High said farewell to its social chairman. We would like to wish him good luck and the best of everything in the air force. His last function was held on his last day at school in the McCauley auditorium. Several selections were on the program and three interesting films were shown to round it out.

Mr. Hilton gave out the war savings stamps to the students with the highest averages on Christmas reports in each room. Admission for the "lit" was 10 cents which went into a war savings stamp punch card and towards a stamp.

This week most of our students braved the 50 below zero weather to come to school. As our students come from all parts of the city, many of which are several miles away we thought we did well to have the attendance we did. It was down just slightly.

We are proud to say that Tech beat Westglen in a hockey game recently to the score of 4-0. We are headed in the right direction and have a good chance to enter the playoffs.

Dr. Hart Speaks To Knox Y.P. On Christianity

Edmonton Y.P. activities during the last week showed both variety and originality. The guest speaker at Knox at their regular meeting was Dr. J. Hart, formerly of Stettler, now superintendent of home missions. Dr. Hart spoke on "A Faith to Use" affirming his belief that Christianity still offers the only hope for the youth of today. Lorne Shewfelt was in charge of the meeting which opened with a sing-song led by Margaret Latter of Robertson, president of the Edmonton Y.P. Union. The worship service was led by Eileen Webster who illustrated her address with slides. The meeting closed with refreshments.

Bissell's week day meeting was largely devoted to business. In addition, however, Gordon Pretty explained the meaning and purpose of So-Ed. Gary Troutman gave an excellent address on "Post-War Reconstruction," a paper originally prepared for the public speaking contest, now cancelled. It is interesting to note in passing that Gary wrote for information for his essay to no less a person than Wendell Wilkie. He got an answer, too! And a good one.

GUEST SPEAKER

Metropolitan was fortunate in having as guest speaker Miss Ruth Shipley. She gave a most interesting account of her trip along the west coast of B.C. Two-piano solos were presented by Bert Loree and enjoyed by the group.

McDougall welcomed to its meeting Sunday Mrs. McMinn, wife of their minister. She spoke to them on the subject of missionary work in the United Church both at home and abroad.

The devotional, taken by Eleanor Cobb presented a fourfold scheme of development in the Christian life. Piano and vocal solos were presented by Nelda Faulkner and Roy Shaw respectively, rounding out an enjoyable evening.

Ukrainian-Canadian Artists Give Programs

Opening and closing events of the two-day provincial convention of the Alberta branch of the Ukrainian-Canadian Association this week-end were scheduled to be concert programs presented by the above artists. This group of dancers, singers, instrumental artists and dramatists presented a light operetta entitled "Harry, Don't Visit the Night Parties" at the Imperial Hall at 8 p.m. Friday. The convention business sessions opened at 10 a.m. Saturday but the convention was officially opened with this operetta Friday night. M. Yakimchuk is the director. Sunday night the group will present a concert of singing, folk dancing and instrumental numbers, at the Memorial Hall, with Dimitri Nikiforuk in charge. Proceeds from Sunday's concert will go to the Canadian Aid To Russia Fund.

C.G.I.T. Groups Are Making Ties For Middy Wear

The three C.G.I.T. groups at First Baptist church are busy planning new projects to work on as soon as they finish the ones they are working on now. For instance, the junior group under the leadership of Jean Cawley has been learning the whys and wherefores of C.G.I.T. hymns and other matters pertaining to this organization, such as making ties for their middies, learning the true meaning of the middies, and to know how to wear their middies. They also are making plans to hold a party in the near future.

The intermediate group under the supervision of Ruby Carmichael is making a baby layette to be given away as soon as it is finished. They also had a leader from Winnipeg to talk to them about how the C.G.I.T. groups were progressing in that city.

GOOD PROGRAMS

The senior group is making good progress under the leadership of Gladys Williams. They open their meeting each week with the roll call to which every girl who is a member answers with the "secret code word". Then the group stands in a circle while the leader reads a few verses of scripture after which the president leads the girls in singing a negro spiritual.

The girls' response to this opening ceremony is very enthusiastic. Some of the work done in the past was quilt making, filling a ditty bag. Among some of the discussions that took place were the shortcomings and the good points of the group as individuals, to this, it let each member see themselves as others see them and benefit accordingly. A future topic of the group is personality and how to acquire it. The pianist and the song-leader of the department are classifying the music and the song sheets.

Garneau Carnival Proves Successful

The crowning of the King and Queen, Marjorie Jones and Bob Hatch, by Miss Staples marked the opening of a successful carnival last week at Garneau.

Winners in the races were: eight years and under, girls, P. Johnston, boys, G. Smith; 10 years and under, girls, B. Eagle; boys, J. Feery; 13 years and under, girls, E. Hatch; boys, B. Parker; 15 years and under, girls, R. Tye; boys, J. Rutherford, boys 15 years and over, D. Straw.

In the mixed races winners were: flat iron, J. la Rose and J. Hustler; three-legged, J. Dingle and G. Hobeck; open race, L. Calhoun; backward, G. Longman.

Prizes, which were donated by Edmonton business firms, were presented by the king and queen.

At 10.30 p.m. "lights out" marked the close of the carnival and Garneau all felt that the teachers and students' executive had once more exceeded all expectations.

Presbyterian Y.P. To See Slides

Meeting of the First Presbyterian Young People on Sunday will take the form of a motion picture slide showing.

They will be presented by Miss Cora Sutter and will be views of the mountains which she has taken herself on various trips to the mountain resorts.

We're sure these will prove of great interest to all the young people and hope that there will be a good attendance on Sunday night.

Mrs. Conant Urges Girls' Parliament

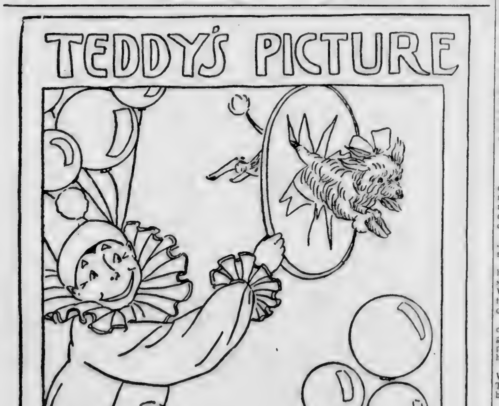
HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 23—(CP) Establishment of a girls' parliament including girls or young women of all classes was suggested by Mrs. Gordon Conant, wife of the Ontario premier, in an address to the Hamilton women's Liberal club.

Extensive Search Now Underway For Lost Flier

HALIFAX, Jan. 23—(CP)—An extensive search is being made for one of the dominion's best known airmen, Flt. Lt. S. Alward (Al) Cheesman of Port Arthur, Ont., and two companions, missing since last Sunday, the headquarters of the Eastern Air Command announced here yesterday.

An air force statement said that no trace of their plane has been found since it left its base at Scoudouc, N.B., on a rountine flight.

With Flt. Lt. Cheesman were Cpl. G. A. Nimmons of North Peterborough, Ont., and LAC. P. G. Landry of Moncton, N.B.



(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

"The clown's mouth is RED and the two spots over his eyes are RED, too!" said Teddy getting right to work. He painted the balls on the clown's hat and suit RED also, and the dog's neck ribbon GREEN.

"The hoop should be YELLOW, I think," said Teddy. "And the paper the dog jumps through, BLUE. I will paint the biggest balloons BLUE and the next size RED and PURPLE, two of the first and three of the last named color. Now, isn't that stunning? I think I will paint the dog BLACK and make his tongue RED. I like this picture a lot now!" said Teddy.

He painted the border YELLOW and the lettering PURPLE.

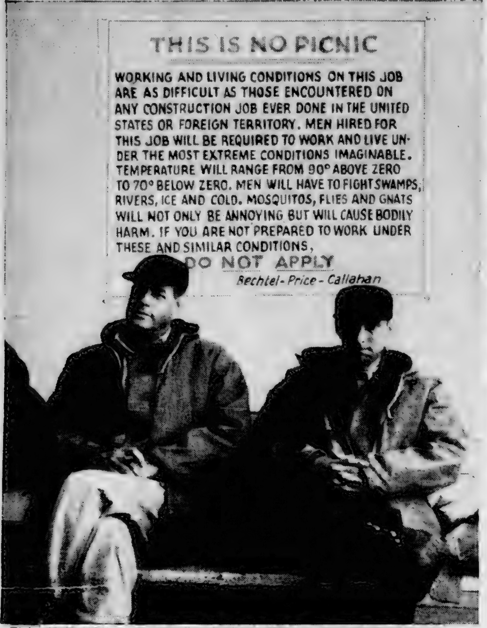
United Nations Soldiers Keep 'Em Rolling On Canada-U.S. "Road To Tokyo" Battle Against Mighty Odds Won To Build Alaska Highway To Arctic Front



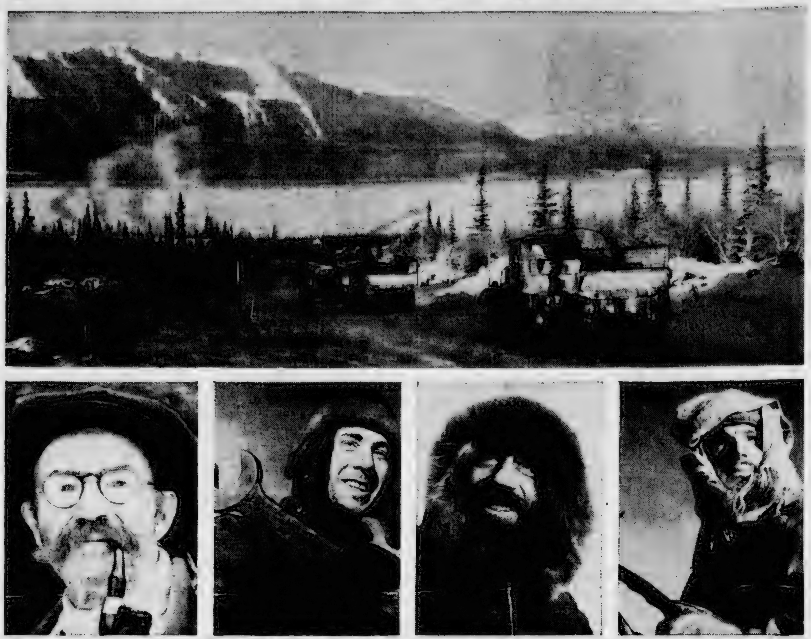
THIS IS NO PICNIC

WORKING AND LIVING CONDITIONS ON THIS JOB ARE AS DIFFICULT AS THOSE ENCOUNTERED ON ANY CONSTRUCTION JOB EVER DONE IN THE UNITED STATES OR FOREIGN TERRITORY. MEN HIRED FOR THIS JOB WILL BE REQUIRED TO WORK AND LIVE UNDER THE MOST EXTREME CONDITIONS IMAGINABLE. TEMPERATURE WILL RANGE FROM 90° ABOVE ZERO TO 70° BELOW ZERO. MEN WILL HAVE TO FIGHT SWAMPS, RIVERS, ICE AND COLD. MOSQUITOS, FLIES AND GNATS WILL NOT ONLY BE ANNOYING BUT WILL CAUSE BODILY HARM. IF YOU ARE NOT PREPARED TO WORK UNDER THESE AND SIMILAR CONDITIONS,

DO NOT APPLY

Bechtel-Price-Callahan

Eight months after work was begun, the Alaska Highway through Canada to Alaska is now open for traffic. Two Texans shown here waiting for jobs appear to be unconcerned about the "extreme conditions" described in the warning on wall.



Day and night truck convoys roll over 1600 miles of road with supplies for airports and bases. Upper photo shows supply column wheeling into refueling base. Below L. to R.—Louis Jacquot, wise in ways of north helped build highway; Corp. W. J. Ashbey, of U.S. Army goes to work on "cat" with giant spanner; Robert McCarroll and U.S. Army driver sport different models of Yukon fashions.

Two U.S. Army sergeants concentrate on their nightly game of cribbage after a day on the vital road through the wilderness. Two cans on the table hold beer, the first these soldiers have seen after long weeks in the lonely north.

Giant bulldozers like the one above were used on the Alaska highway to knock down trees to form a bed over the spongy muskeg of the northern bush country.

Anti-tank manoeuvres in the snow-laden bush along the Alaska highway are a matter of routine to the tough, trained soldiers who patrol our Arctic front line defence. Here men await the signal to fire their light artillery piece.

'I Am a Murderer'

BY MORRIS MARKEY

THE STORY: This is the story of the "perfect crime"—the murder of Col. Wesley Hope Merriwether in the library of his Long Island estate and of the events leading up to it. We have met the wealthy Colonel's attractive daughter Cynthia. We know that Henry Prentiss' injured hand will keep him out of the days' polo game, and that another player, Fred West is being urged to marry Cynthia and replenish the family finances.

CHAPTER III

THE only report that came to Mrs. Porter West of her son's proposal to Cynthia Merriwether was in a chance remark that Fred delivered as he drank coffee with her after dinner one night.

"By the way," he said, "Cynnie told me to go climb a tree. But," and he smiled a little wryly, "she said it could be a tree in her own back yard.

On the whole, this was not too distrubing to Mrs. Porter West. She had learned, with men and with horses, the inestimable art of patience—and persistence she did not have to learn because it was born with her.

Which seemed fertile advice except for one element which grew steadily into the situation. That element was Henry Prentiss.

Now it should be said at once that Col. Wesley Hope Merriwether and his daughter Cynthia were not of the old school. They were not even, in the strict sense, Long Island. Six or seven years ago they had appeared at Gull Point, and the colonel had bought, for certain holy quantities of cash money, the old and altogether magnificent Stone estate. And horses once more had filled the barns. And a preternaturally shy Cynthia had taken confidence unto herself and had grown slowly beautiful.

Whence had they come? Well no advices were offered from Stone House, and the times had changed to affect, permanently no doubt, the asking of direct questions upon such a matter. The essential fact was, alas, that Colonel Merriwether was a very rich man. At least he behaved like one. Not nouveau riche, not devoted to crude, extravagant display. Oh, no. But solid, assured, and in his particularly calm manner altogether opulent.

Did the Hunt (a trifle embarrassed for funds) wish the hounds walked for a month? Colonel Merriwether would undertake the burden; daily food for the 26 dogs and keep for their handlers. Not too readily. No too eagerly.

He would hear the secretary of the hunt and the master of fox hounds explain the situation—listening most gravely—and then, after some moment's consideration and in the quietest of tones, he would say, "I think it would be a pleasure, gentlemen. I am always glad to be of such assistance as I may manage."

Did the beagling crowd look about a little wistfully for somebody to serve breakfast after the Sunday morning coursing? Stone House was gracious in its hospitality, ample with its food, and positively distinguished with its Fish House punch, within whose aromatic bowls the bouquet of Clicquot '29 was never missing.

When Cynthia grew of an age to undertake the duties of hostess (no Mrs. Merriwether had ever been seen-or even mentioned) the entertainments within those broad and enviable rooms, upon the terrace, at the pool and the tennis courts, became more lavish. Everybody who was anybody felt at home there, despite the magnificence, and in a confused and troubled world Stone House was a haven of quiet merriment and all of its atmosphere was of ineffable security.

There was only one curious note. The guests at Stone House were, without exception, the people of Gull Point (and their own weekend or summer guests). Nobody ever appeared from the outside world, nobody from that existence which the Merriwethers must, perforce, have lived before their arrival in the community.

It would not be a precise statement to say that Mrs. Porter West enjoyed the hospitality of Stone House. Naturally, she was on the guest list prepared and kept carefully to date by Mitchell Grace, the Colonel's secretary. She even forewent her native antipathy to invitations-by-telephone, and invariably accepted them. But the verb "to enjoy" has connotations peculiar to itself. Mrs. Porter West was too shrewd a woman to spend her opportunities in the vain pleasures of the fleeting hour. When she went to Stone House, she went on business.

And she found out, early indeed, enough to convince her that here, despite certain unsatisfactory details, was the Main Chance—for her Frederick, and not incidentally by any means, for herself.

Then the insufferable Henry Prentiss appeared. Four years ago, wasn't it? Yes, about four years. He, too, seemed to come out of nowhere. Oh, one or two of the boys remembered playing polo with him on the coast, at Midwick and the Uplifters. But what was that? Hollywood! And before Hollywood? Who could know? Probably born in Flatbush!

She had addressed her son upon the subject within a month of Henry Prentiss' arrival. "By the way, Frederick—" (fluttering of the newspaper and sudden interest in some obscure item).

"Yes, Mother?"

"Oh—what?"

"You were saying something."

"Dear me—what could it have been—Oh! I was just wondering who is your friend Henry Prentiss? Seems a rough and tumble sort of chap."

"Hank?" Fred laughed. "Salt of the earth, Mother. Don't bother. He'll not contaminate your precious Gull Point. The man's positively moral. By Joe, Mother, the most moral citizen I ever knew!"

"I don't care for your language. I asked you a simple question. Very simple."

"To wit: Who is my friend Henry Prentiss? Let us reply, then. He is a guy from California who has a six-goal rating there, good for a three-goal rating in our own high class backyard. He plays a nice game and he's got top ponies to do it with. He lives in the Brewer cottage, which he rented, and as far as I know he pays his rent—along with his other bills.

"I never saw him fumble the check at 21 or the Stork Club or the St. Regis. He doesn't gossip and never boasts. He's good company, and personally I like him. But, wait a minute! His neckties! I knew something was wrong with the guy. He wears lousy, noisy, viciously expensive neckties. Guess I'll have to drop him after all."

Mrs. Porter West looked at him steadily.

"Does it occur to you," she said, "that you have neglected to answer my question?"

"You're being rather difficult, Mother."

"Perhaps. But it has not escaped me that your friend has given rather devoted attention to the Merriwethers—and to Cynthia in particular."

"Oh, nuts. The girl can pick her own friends, can't she? If she wants to walk out with Tony Galento, what business is it of yours, or mine?"

"I'm sorry, Mother. I apologize. I keep forgetting you're not used to my crude manners. I suppose we're a pretty low-down generation. But quit worrying about Hank—and Cynnie. He's a right guy and she's a right kid, and everything comes out in the wash anyway."

Cynthia gave a shrill cry, jumping to her feet and clapping her hands. And Mrs. Porter West swam out of her bitter reveries and lifted her eyes to the soothing green carpet of the playing field—to the little clump of horsemen pulling up their mounts at the mouth of the north goal.

Her son had just scored beautifully from a wide angle, and the scoreboard told that his Whirlwinds were leading the Clovers, 5 to 3. Henry Prentiss was enjoying Cynthia's excitement to the utmost. He looked with delight at her pink cheeks, her eyes glowing with all of her grand vitality, her small fists beating against each other—and he laughed aloud, slapping his thigh.

Mrs. Porter West murmured to herself, "Gauche individual!" and kicked the bench in front of her with her elegant toe, in a manner of such vigor that it would certainly have been frowned upon by any stout-hearted member of the old school.

Ferry Command Adds Mercy Hop To Many Tasks

MONTREAL, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The Royal Air Force Ferry Command has added a "mercy flight" to a routine that includes delivery of bombers, urgent war material and official passengers.

Responding to an urgent request from the Grenfell Mission in Labrador a big Liberator bomber flew medical supplies to Hopedale and parachuted them to a post where serious illness had broken out.

Cheery waves from mission officials after they retrieved the supplies and absence of any further requests led Ferry Command men to believe "they got what they wanted and have the situation well in hand."

War Board Order To Insure Coast Potato Supplies

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.—(CP)—Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, announced yesterday that an order has been issued providing for the sale of potatoes direct from growers to the retail trade in the Vancouver area whenever adequate supplies are not made available through the existing marketing agency.

The action was taken to "correct a serious shortage of potatoes in the Vancouver market," the board statement said. The order overrides provincial marketing regulations if they keep potatoes off the market.

"Yesterday's order was made necessary because in recent weeks adequate quantities of local potatoes have not been marketed by the coast grocers," the board said.

Annual Meeting

Royal Alexandra Hospital 1942 Expenditures $591,062; Revenue Increased $78,760

Total cost of operating the Royal Alexandra hospital in 1942 was $591,062, it was reported at the annual meeting of the hospital board held Friday evening. The chairman, George A. Campbell, presided.

Business of the meeting also included reports from Superintendent Dr. F. A. Anderson and Miss M. Fraser, superintendent of nurses at the hospital.

Revenue of the hospital was $529,263.77 last year, $78,760 more than the 1941 figure. Earnings last year exceeded the 1941 figure by $32,071 while operational costs were $45,000 more than in 1941.

Operational costs last year included $4,672 spent on office alterations and an additional $6,000 for special expenditures, but did not include $38,200 charged up as special reserve for renewals account. Of this amount, $35,000 was deposited with the sinking fund board.

Cost per patient day was $[illegible] as compared with $3.59 in 1941. Actual deficit for the year was $61,800 while that of 1941 was $95,531. Grant from the city amounted to $[illegible] in 1942.

PATIENT RECEIPTS

Patient receipts for the year were $[illegible] exceeding the estimate by $58,600 and were $73,000 more than in 1941.

Revenue from soldiers' accounts was $700 more than last year and exceeded the estimate by $2,250, while the government grant earned was also higher than last year due to increased number of hospital days, and about $2,000 higher than the estimate.

The purchasing department reported that 855,289 meals were served at a cost per head of 11.73 cents per meal. The increase in the cost of food was estimated at three and a half per cent.

In the stores departments there was a total issue of $34,980 during 1942. The 1941 figure was $33,593.

Total issues in the pharmacy department amounted to $55,008, $90 less than in 1941. This was accounted for by practising economy on supplies, Dr. Anderson stated.

Reserves set up for building alterations and equipment amounted to $35,000 for the sinking fund investment and $3,200 for the hospital suspense account.

Number of patients admitted to the hospital was 11,569. There were 290 deaths, of whom 108 averaged 75 years of age.

MATERNITY WARD

In the maternity ward there were 1,522 confinements and there were 3,000 consecutive births last year without a maternal death.

Figures on post-operative deaths were the lowest in the hospital's history, Dr. Anderson stated, and would compare favorably with any hospital he added.

Of the babies born during the year [illegible] were boys and 752 girls, he said. There were 18 pairs of twins.

During the past year there had been times when the hospital staff had experienced difficulty in supplying enough staff to meet the needs, especially to meet the emergencies caused by the illness or other unexpected absence of nurses, Miss Fraser revealed in her report.

Staff of the hospital has decreased by ten, Miss Fraser said, adding that an effort is being made to increase the student enrolment. The class that graduates this year, however, is a small one for it now only numbers 36, having started with 53.

Measures for alleviation of the shortage of nurses includes part-time duty for married graduate nurses, employment of ward-aides, a refresher course for married or inactive nurses and the training of voluntary aides organized under the Canadian Red Cross Society.

APPOINTMENTS

Miss Fraser also announced two new appointments to the nursing staff, Mrs. Leonore White as assistant night supervisor and Miss Lucille Handley as a member of the operating room staff.

Reports of the activities and assistance given by the Women's Auxiliary were also submitted by Miss Fraser.

"Tumbles" Are Top Headache For Hospitals

To the layman the biggest headache for hospital authorities would seem to be getting recalcitrant patients to take their nasty-tasting medicine but according to reports at the annual meeting of the hospital board of the Royal Alexandra hospital this isn't so.

Compiling List of South Africa Vets

An effort is being made to compile a roll of South African war veterans and veterans of earlier campaigns living in Edmonton and the surrounding district.

Men qualifying for inclusion on the roll, who have not received a questionnaire, are asked to apply at once to R. Law, 7722 99 street, or telephone 34379.

COME ON, MAJOR, PILE ON! — YOU'RE THE ONE WHO WAS SO CRAZY TO GO COASTING!
NOT THIS TRIP, LADS! — GO AHEAD — I'LL JOIN YOU NEXT TIME!
YEAH! I'M GETTING JELLY KNEES!
WHY DOESN'T THE OLD PENGUIN TAKE A RIDE INSTEAD OF POSING UP THERE AND GIVING EVERYBODY AN EAR-ACHE?
WHEW! THIS HILL IS AS SLICK AS A SWEATING EEL — ESPECIALLY ON THE WAY UP!
T. M. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.
COME ON, MAJOR! WE'RE SHOVING OFF AGAIN!
NEXT TIME, BUSTER! — I WAS JUST TELLING THIS GENTLEMAN ABOUT MY EPOCHAL SLIDE DOWN MT. SKOOFWALDEN!
THE HILL WAS ALMOST STRAIGHT DOWN — HAR-RUMPH! MY SLED WAS CLOCKED AT 326 MILES AN HOUR — THE FRICTION SENT UP CLOUDS OF SMOKE BEHIND ME =
SUCH WAS MY SPEED THAT THE SLED BURROWED A NATURAL TUNNEL THROUGH THE GROSS ALETSCH, LONGEST OF SWISS GLACIERS!
WELL, HE'S STILL UP THERE WITH THE GAB VALVE WIDE OPEN!
THIS IS THE LAST WALTZ FOR ME — I'M TIREDER THAN THE DOG TEAM THAT TOOK THE SERUM TO NOME!
EGAD! DID YOU BOYS SAY THIS WILL BE THE LAST TRIP? — JOVE! I'D BETTER GO ALONG AND STEER!
MY WORD! THIS IS THRILLING SPORT!
COPR. 1943 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.
I'M 90 PERCENT MORON, BUT THE IDEA IS BEGINNING TO SOAK IN — HE WAITED TILL THE LAST RIDE DOWN SO HE WOULDN'T HAVE TO WALK BACK UP!
JUST AS I WAS SAYING, COASTING IS A PRIME WAY TO KEEP IN THE PINK! — I FEEL TEN YEARS YOUNGER — HEH HEH!
